CAMPING IN COMFORT

THIRD MENACED

Burglars Break Open Two Stores

Two San Rafael stores were broken into and a possible attempted break-in was reported at the Professional Medical Center north of Puerto Suello during the pre-dawn hours today, police said.

A side door was forced at Sam and Eddy's Original Fourth Street Liquor Store and the Acacia Beauty Salon at 740 A Street was broken into and robbed. A screen was found torn from the hinges in the rear of the Professional Medical Center by a police officer about the same time the other burglaries were uncovered.

Eleven or 12 dollars in change was taken from the petty cash drawer of the Acacia Beauty Salon between 6:30 p.m. yesterday and 8 a.m. today, reported Sgt. Louis Foster.

The burglar entered the shop by breaking a rear window and climbing through, Foster reported. A screwdriver and beer opener were both broken by the burglar when he used them to try and force open the petty cash drawer.

Foster said a burglar finally cracked the drawer open after going to a parking lot and taking a 17-inch wrench from the trunk of an abandoned car. The wrench was found in the doorway of the liquor store at 703 Fourth Street.

A janitor arriving for work today found the door of the liquor store had been forced, but nothing was believed to be missing.

Sen. Kennedy Sees Truman

COMBINED AP & UPI

The presidential campaign front took on varied aspects today as Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic candidate, went to Independence, Mo., to smoke a pipe of peace with former president Harry S. Truman, and the Republicans announced plans to send Henry Cabot Lodge to the Midwest and South.

Lodge, Republican vice presidential candidate, who yesterday announced his resignation as chief U. S. delegate to the United Nations, also will get a campaign workout in New England.

Lodge probably will be replaced by James J. Wadsworth, deputy chief of the U. S. delegation to the U. N.

Kennedy arrived on a peace mission to Truman who greeted the Massachusetts senator with a cordial and smiling, "How are you?"

Republican national chairman Thruston B. Morton said the move was a "transparent political gimmick."

MARTINELLI ANNOUNCES RETIREMENT FROM BENCH

Superior Judge Served Since '49; Sims, Gardiner Believed In Line

Jordan L. Martinelli of San Rafael, Marin County Superior Judge for 11 years, will retire Sept. 15 to devote more time to his personal affairs.

The 62-year-old jurist announced his resignation yesterday in letters to the board of supervisors and to the Secretary of State.

Martinelli said he wanted to take a more active part in the executive affairs of the Marin County Savings and Loan Assn. in San Rafael, of which he had been president since Jan. 20, 1959.

A lawyer and judge for 41 years, Martinelli said that during his tenure on the bench he had completely subordinated his private affairs "to the more important and exacting business of the court over which I have presided, and I have ever been conscious of the fact that one cannot serve two masters."

Gov. Edmund G. Brown will appoint a successor to the San Rafael jurist. Municipal Court Judge Richard M. Sims Jr. of Tiburon, a Democrat, and Samuel W. Gardiner, San Rafael attorney and member of the county Democratic Central Committee, are believed to be the leading contenders.

Martinelli was serving a six-year term that was to end Jan. 1, 1963. He will receive 75 per cent of his $21,000 salary as retired pay. He was appointed to fill the judgeship in 1949 by Gov. Earl Warren, and was twice elected to successive six-year terms of office.

The judge expressed the hope that he would not be considered "retired in the usual or strict sense" and said he would continue to serve the courts if called upon for an occasional assignment.

In his letter Martinelli also expressed his gratitude to former Governor Warren; to his predecessor, Edward I. Butler; to the supervisors; the Judicial Council of California; the county clerk and his staff; to Chief Probation Officer Walter H. Busher, his staff and the county probation committee; to all grand and trial jurors, court clerks and bailiffs, district attorneys during his tenure, his colleagues on the courts and members of the bar, to all physicians who have had a part in hearings of the mentally ill and others.

Martinelli, a Republican, served temporarily on the California District Court of Appeal bench in San Francisco for two months in 1958.

He is now senior judge of the Superior Court and presiding judge of Superior Court and Appellate Court of Marin.

He is a graduate of the University of San Francisco Law School, class of 1927, and was regional vice president of the university Law Society in 1957.

PLUCKED FROM AIR

Captured Capsule Returned For Study

MOFFETT FIELD (UPI)—The 300-pound capsule of the Discoverer XIV satellite, which made 17 trips high over the United States, returned this morning for an "indefinite" stay.

Capt. Ed Mosher, 38, of New Bedford, Mass., piloted the plane which brought in the historic cargo. Mosher flew one of the planes which patrolled a 12,000-square-mile area near Hawaii yesterday in order to catch the satellite in mid-air. It was sent aloft Thursday from Vandenburg Air Force Base.

He was 400 miles away when Capt. Harold E. Mitchell snagged the parachuting capsule by means of a rope strung between two long poles.

It was a can 2½ feet by 2½ feet by three feet. Photographers immediately rushed forward to photograph the container, but requests that it be opened were denied.

The can was loaded onto a truck and driven to the Lockheed Missile and Space Division at Sunnyvale.

Daniel J. Gribbon, of Lockheed, said that the satellite would remain at the division laboratory for an "indefinite" period until tests were completed. He said this was the first satellite which would undergo thorough testing after a journey through space since the one recovered Aug. 12 was given a quick check-over and then sent to Washington, D.C., where it will end up in the Smithsonian Institution.

WEATHER FORECAST

'Can Catch Them All,' Pilot Says

HONOLULU (AP) — "I don't see why we can't catch them all from now on"

That confident outlook toward the day when man is orbited in space by a satellite and parachuted back by capsule came from the navigator of the plane which made history's first air catch yesterday, 8,500 feet over the Pacific.

He was among the nine jubilant crewmen awarded the Air Medal on landing back at Hickam Air Force Base with the 85-pound capsule, ejected over Alaska by the earth-circling Discoverer XIV.

The plane's captain, Harold E. Mitchell, who got the Distinguished Flying Cross for the feat, had to settle his nerves.

"I was so nervous I could hardly handle it," he confided.

As the capsule floated down prior to the catch of a dangling hook into the parachute shrouds, Mitchell had pleaded:

"For gosh sakes, don't hurt it."

Staff Sgt. Al Harmon, 28, of Wedowee, Ala., was the first to speak after the capsule was secured on the plane's third pass. "A good hit, we've got it," he yelled. "It's a good hold."

CONGO AIDES ARRIVE FOR U.N. SESSION

Stage Set For Talks As Lumumba Continues Threats

COMBINED AP AND UPI

The arrival of the disgruntled Congo delegation at the United Nations in New York, paved the way today for behind-scenes talks on the eve of the emergency Security Council session on the worsening crisis.

Delegates awaited tomorrow's Council session with growing anxiety as fiery Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba continued to widen the breach with blackmail charges against Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold and demands for withdrawal of all white troops from the Congo.

ANOTHER OUTBURST

Lumumba capped his latest outburst by declaring that he was ready to renounce the services of the U.N. because the Congo "is nobody's property."

Delegates of nine African member countries have been conferring daily since Lumumba defied Hammarskjold and prompted the angered secretary-general to return to the U.N. last Tuesday to ask the Security Council to endorse his neutrality policy in the Congo. Since then attacks on U.N. personnel have increased tension in the African nation.

In Leopoldville U.N. troops maintained rigid control of Ndjilli Airfield despite new threats by Lumumba to call in troops from other nations to replace the U.N. force.

WIRE BARRIER

More than 500 Sudanese, Ghanian and Moroccan troops were patrolling the runways, and everyone entering or leaving the airfield had to pass a barbed-wire barrier where identity papers were carefully checked.

A Soviet plane carrying the five-man delegation from the Congo arrived in New York last night.

The 11-nation council is scheduled to meet at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow.

Space Ship, Dogs Return

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet news agency Tass said today the Russian "Space Menagerie" has been safely returned to earth with its living cargo.

Tass said:

"At the signal from the earth the second Soviet space ship landed in the pre-set area at the 18th revolution around the globe.

"The space ship and the capsule with the experimental animals detached from the ship landed safely.

"It is the first time in history that living beings safely returned to the earth after covering over 700,000 kilometers in outer space."

Vandals Hit Novato Church

Vandals smashed and tore up the interior of Our Lady of Loretto's Catholic Church in Novato yesterday.

Sometime between 7:45 and 11:40 a.m. the drapes and electric cords were pulled from the confession boxes, brass candle holders from the altar were thrown to the floor, flowers and flower pots and a holy water vase were also found on the church floor, reported the Marin County Sheriff's department. Furniture was also scattered around the church located at 1204 Grant Avenue.

Rev. Charles J. Farrell, pastor, told deputy sheriffs that when he left the church at 7:45 everything was intact. A parishioner found the mess, and summoned a priest. Investigation has uncovered no one who saw any person near the church at the time of the attack, said the sheriff's office.

Powers' Wife To Maintain Moscow Vigil

American Lawyers Plan Meeting On 'Clemency'

MOSCOW (AP) — Barbara Powers said today she will not leave Moscow until she has done everything possible to help her husband, Francis Gary Powers, sentenced to 10 years detention for espionage.

But she told a news conference that the pattern of the future is dim and she cannot be specific about her plans.

The brunette wife of the convicted U-2 pilot answered "yes" when asked if she found the man she called Gary still emotionally and physically "the same husband you knew."

In a separate interview the pilot's father, Oliver W. Powers, talking about the family's dramatic reunion with the flier directly after the conclusion of his trial Friday, said: "He's the same old boy I raised from a little feller right on up."

MAY SEE NIKITA

Frank Rogers of Roanoke, Va., one of the lawyers sent by the Virginia Bar Assn. to observe Powers' three-day trial, said the machinery for granting clemency would be set in motion today.

After the initial appeal, Rogers said, the family would follow up with a direct plea to Khrushchev.

"We will stay here and fight for Gary as long as our money holds out and the Soviet government lets us," said Oliver W. Powers of Pound, Va., the pilot's father.

COURT APPEAL

An appeal through the courts could be based on points of law and made to the president of the Supreme Court. But this is a lengthy, complicated process.

If Soviet authorities agree to consider such an appeal, it must be considered by 12 judges of the Soviet Supreme Court sitting with presidents of the Supreme Courts of all 15 Soviet republics.

AUTO SLIPS INTO HOME WITH CRASH

Larkspur motorist Harold Merkling, 43, of 36 Chanticleer Street, had intended to drive his friend early today up to the door of her apartment, but ended up driving into the building—through a window.

Merkling had dropped off Helen Laden at 116 Locust Avenue and was turning his car around in the driveway of the building. His car skidded over a 40-foot embankment, overturned and went into the building through a window of one of the structure's split level apartments.

Both persons were treated at Marin General Hospital for bruises. Two other passengers escaped injury.

Felon Steals The Show At San Quentin

Stealing the arts and crafts show at San Quentin Prison today was convicted robber Joseph Caleron of Phoenix, Ariz., who won four first prizes, a third prize and the "best painting" prize in the show for his oil of an Arizona mining town.

Several thousand viewers filed through the exhibit of paintings, sculpture, architectual design and crafts work which will be on display in the Employees' Recreation hall just inside the prison gates until 4 p.m. today and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. tomorrow.

Last year viewers purchased a total of $5,000 in objects. This year most of the items on sale cost from about $5 to $15, but some run as much as $100 or more.

Marin Reservists Hit The Silk In 'Chute Test

Air Force reserves from Marin and the Bay Area will spearhead the largest peacetime parachute drop of troops and equipment beginning this weekend in North Carolina.

Brig. Gen. Rollin B. Moore Jr., commander of the 349th Troop Carrier Wing will command the aerial armada. Today, 8,500 men and 6,500 tons of equipment of the 101st airborne division were to spill into the air from planes flown by Bay Area and other personnel. On Tuesday, another 3,500 men and 650 tons of equipment from the 82nd Airborne Division will hit the silk.

Headquarters for the 349th (Golden Gate) Wing is at Hamilton Air Force Base, where C-119 Flying Boxcars took off early this week to prepare for the drop.

Marin reservists taking part in the exercise include Lt. Col. Billy C. Means, operations officer, Novato; Maj. Clemitt L. Swagerty, plans officer, San Anselmo; Capt. Ray M. Foster, operations officer, Novato; S/Sgt. Lloyd Bowen, flight engineer, Novato, who will be in one of the lead planes for the drop; civilian William Nash, San Rafael, information director for the wing.

Castro Creates Enmity With Catholic Church

By TOM HENSHAW

NEW YORK (AP) — Cuba's strong man, Prime Minister Fidel Castro, shows signs of making a formidable enemy in his own backyard—the Roman Catholic Church.

In at least two cases in recent years, the ouster of strong man governments in predominantly Catholic Latin America has been preceded by church dissatisfaction with the ruling regime.

The most notable instance was in Argentina in 1955 when Dictator Juan Peron was overthrown after a long, bitter dispute with the church that resulted in his excommunication.

Again in 1958, Venezuelan strong man Marcos Jiminez so antagonized the church that Venezuela and the Vatican were said to have been on the verge of a diplomatic break when Perez Jiminez was ousted.

The Cuban hierarchy expressed that concern last Sunday in a pastoral letter read in the country's churches. The letter noted the "close commercial, cultural and diplomatic relations" that have been established with Communist countries.

"Catholicism and communism respond to two concepts of man and the world that are totally opposed to each other and can never be reconciled," the letter said.

Last week the archbishop of Havana, Most Rev. Evelio Diaz, threatened to close all of Cuba's Catholic churches unless the Castro regime guaranteed freedom of worship.

A week earlier, Cuban Catholics emerged from mass in Havana shouting "Cuba, Yes!! Russia, No!" and tangled in street fights with pro-Castro crowds.

Castro has singled out some priests as "enemies of the revolution," a cry reminiscent of the early days of Peron's troubles with the church.

The Argentine dictator labeled some priests "troublemakers" and arrested or detained 60 clergymen for showing "disrespect" for him.

Most of the nations south of the American border are heavily Catholic. Cuba is 84.3 per cent Catholic. Yet, even the church admits, many Latin Americans are Catholics in name only. It's regarded as a prime mission field.

There is also the element of anti-clericalism. Some Latin Americans find no contradiction in being devout Catholics and harbor deep suspicions of the clergy at the same time.

But, nominal Catholics, anti-clerics or not, the church still retains a powerful appeal to its Latin people, as Peron has found out—and possibly Castro will discover.

Fairfax Parish Plans Labor Day Festival

The twenty-ninth annual Labor Day Weekend Festival at St. Rita's Church in Fairfax will begin Saturday, Sept. 3, at 3 p.m. on the parish grounds.

The traditional three-day event, sponsored by the church, is under the direction, this year, of John W. Colwell, who announced that the high point of the festival will be a chicken dinner, served Sunday of the weekend at 5 p.m. The dinner will be sponsored by the Italian Catholic Federation. Colwell said that hot dogs and coffee will also be available at the church kitchen during the festival.

On the parish grounds will be the numerous booths and each evening is to be highlighted by special entertainment, said Colwell.

Court St. Agnes of the Catholic Daughter of America will sponsor an apron booth, while a cake booth will be headed by members of St. Rita's Women's Guild.

The booths will be constructed by Sam Irving and Gene Harden, and will offer beer, bingo, ham, wheels and games, and religious shrines. There will also be children's booths and a teenage booth, as well as a fish pond and snow cone booth.

Honorary chairman of the festival will be church pastor Rev. John J. Murray. Rev. Nicholas Farana will serve as treasurer, and Mrs. Leo A. Torman as secretary.

Marin Youth To Hold Sing

The worldwide organization, Youth For Christ, will present a special musical program and lead teenagers in a community sing of Christian songs at the First Baptist Church of San Anselmo tomorrow.

The "singspiration," to be held from 3 to 4:30 p.m., will be attended by teenagers from Marin churches.

"Teenagers in junior high school through college, as well as pastors and youth workers, are cordially invited," said Jeanne C. Krantz of the church.

Luthern Church Pastor Arrives

Rev. John T. Rotto, 31, who will establish a new Lutheran church in Fairfax, arrived from North Dakota, and has set up temporary headquarters at his home in San Anselmo.

The pastor, his wife Lina and their three children, have moved into 200 Oak Crest Road, San Anselmo. He plans to begin services, at a location still to be announced, from Sept. 11.

Marin 'Kid Krusade' Begins With Parade

The Southern Marin Assembly of God Church in Mill Valley was to have a parade today from the church through the center of Mill Valley to initiate a two-week "Kids Krusade."

The crusade, to begin Monday at 7 p.m. at the church, will include bible stories, music and special entertainment, including "Chief Red Feather," for the children, announced pastor J. C. Walton.

Novato Has Guest

Rev. J. Hudson Ballard will be guest speaker at the Novato Presbyterian Church tomorrow at both the 9:30 and 11 a.m. worship services, with Holy Communion to be observed after the services.

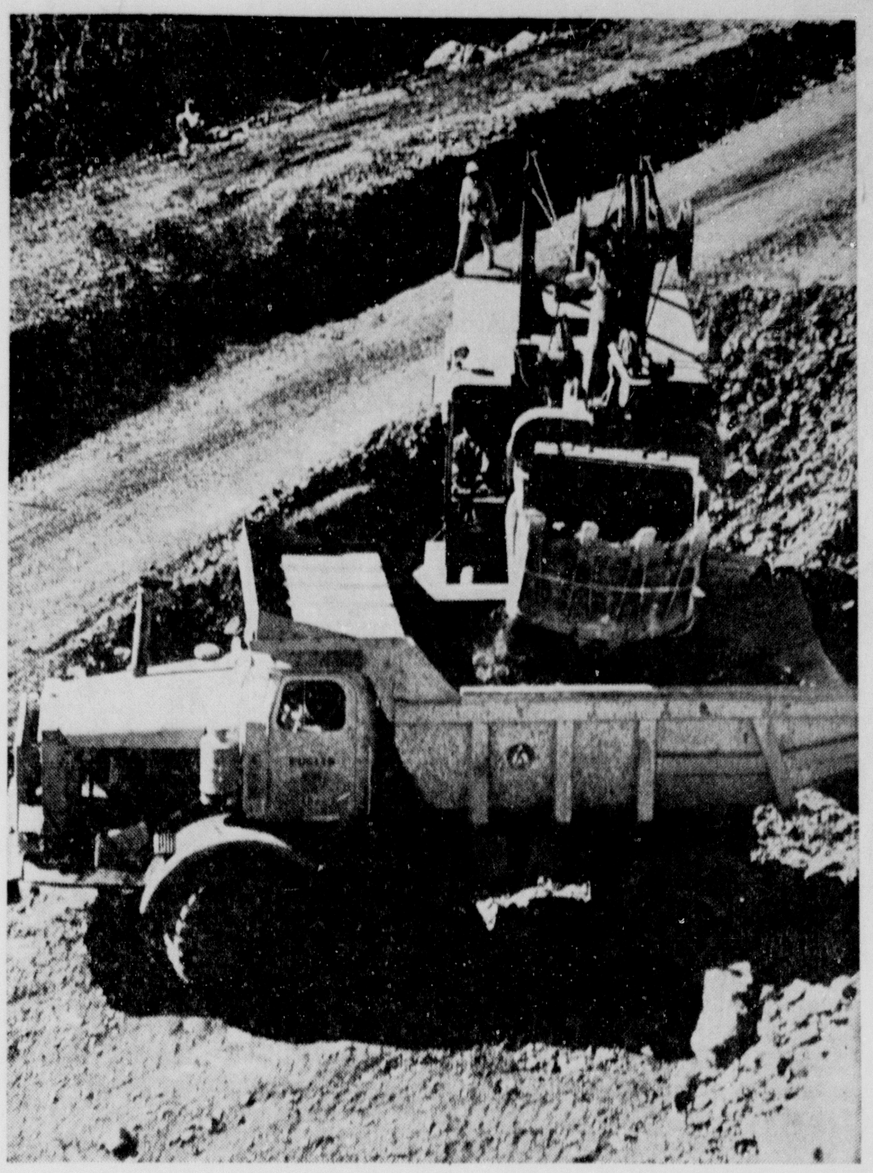
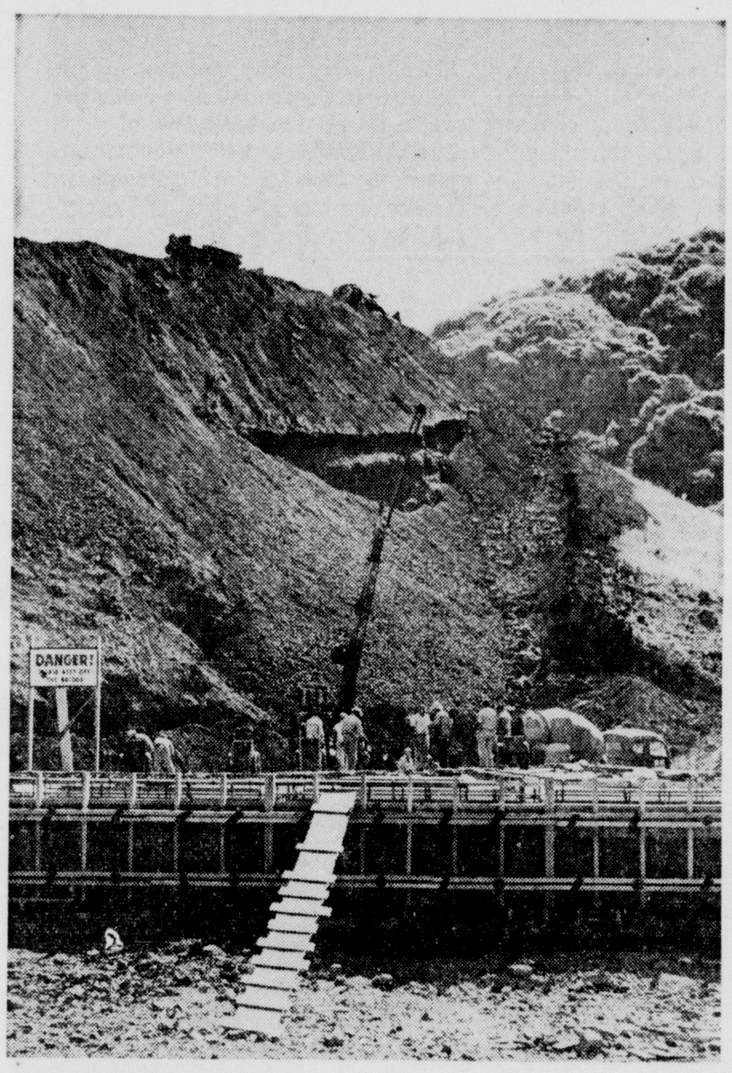
WORKING TO BEAT THE RAINS—Rainfall for the 1960-61 rainy season is to be impounded behind the new Nicasio dam, officials of Marin Municipal Water District have vowed. That's why bulldozers and trucks are working by night as by day to get the job finished before winter. Independent-Journal photographer Bob Hax, who took all the pictures on this page, firmly planted his camera in the midst of the traffic to take a night time exposure showing lights of the busy vehicles. (See lower left corner for same view in daytime.)

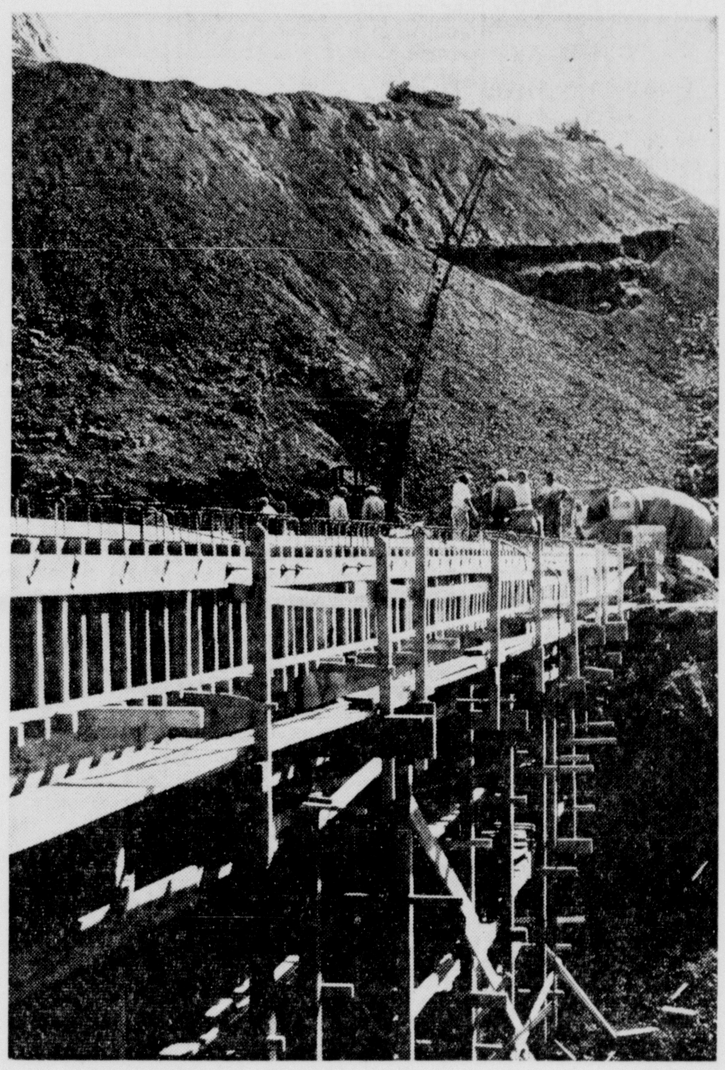
Work Goes On Day And Night On Big Nicasio Dam Project



FEEDING WITH A BIG SPOON—Like a mother bird giving a worm to her young, but on a grotesque and gigantic scale, is this power shovel dropping dirt into a dumptruck. This is part of the road-building project at the Nicasio dam site, where an essential to flooding a new lake is to take the county highway up to levels where it will escape waters due to start rising with the first rains of next winter.



A NEW BRIDGE FOR A NEW ROAD—Now the signs read "Keep Off the Bridge," but a few months hence all traffic past the new Nicasio dam and its lake will go over this bridge, part of new highway to replace road to be flooded when the dam begins to impound water. Pouring of concrete was completed a few days ago.



BIGGER POURS AHEAD—A mixer visible at the end of timber forms pours concrete for bridge which will carry the newly relocated highway past the Nicasio dam and lake. Note reinforcing steel rods projecting above wood forms. On the skyline far above may be seen earth moving equipment.

DUMP TRUCK ON THE MOVE—Big vehicles rush and wheel on the Nicasio dam project like so many light sports cars. Behind this turning dump truck may be seen a juggernaut with tremendous roller-weight pressing on steel super-spikes which pulverize the ground over which it passes.

THEY GO THATAWAY AND THATAWAY—Like a traffic pattern on Mars are these paths of mobile equipment working on the Nicasio dam site. Most of the "roads" are strictly temporary and just part of the general job including alterations of highway pattern, along with clearing of the area to be flooded and construction of the dam itself. This is daylight view of the same scene shown at night in photo at top of page.

BIG JOB TO KEEP LIGHTS BURNING

A 38-foot tower reaches upward for workmen to replace bulb on Highway 101 at Alto Hill. Heavy equipment comes in from San Francisco every six months to clean or replace mercury vapor lights. Some thoughtless vandal with rock or slingshot could undo in a split second the time and money spent for such maintenance work.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Sleep Case Demand

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—The next round in the case of the two "sleeping beauty" sisters will unfold in New York where the family's attorneys will demand they be allowed to study medical records of the mysterious coma which the girls suffered.

Attorneys, having won a postponement in Mrs. Lillian Fratantonio's trial here, will ask the New York State Supreme Court Tuesday to compel the Columbia-Presbyterian Hospital of New York City to reveal the results of tests made on 3-year-old Bernadette.

Bernadette and Venita, 5, baffled the medical profession until it was found they had been drugged.

Linked To Slayings

RIVERSIDE (AP)—Police say a skinny, sullen youth has admitted the sadistic slayings of a wealthy vitamin and cosmetics distributor and his wife during a house robbery.

Karl Gentry, 16, was booked yesterday on suspicion of murder along with David Sieterle, 19, and Tom O'Hara, 16.

Police said Gentry told them he had stabbed Charles Duvel, 45, and his wife, Sylvia, 47, during an Aug. 1 robbery to finance new tires for Sieterle's car.

Death Date Canceled

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Brown has canceled Robert L. Mason's Wednesday date with death in the San Quentin gas chamber.

The governor last night commuted Mason's death sentence for murder to life in prison without possibility of parole. He said damage to Mason's brain—which can be treated—was a factor in the crime.

Mason was convicted in Los Angeles last year for the fatal shooting of Mrs. Susan Jamerson and the wounding of her daughter, Mrs. Rona Porrazzo.

Year In Jail

REDWOOD CITY (UPI)—Two ex-convicts who beat a Redwood City man to death after a traffic argument, were sentenced to a year in county jail plus four additional years of probation yesterday.

The victim was Verne Fore, 40, a sales executive and father of two small children.

His assailants were Charles Hazen, 29, a tilesetter, and James Avery, 22, an unemployed sheetmetal worker. Both have served prison terms, Hazen for grand theft and Avery for burglary.

Neylan Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — John Francis Neylan, 74, whose battle for a loyalty oath at the University of California climaxed a series of controversies during a long legal career, died last night of a pulmonary condition.

In addition to his work at the bar, he was a newspaper reporter, chairman of the State Board of Control and, for 28 years, member of the Board of Regents of the University of California.

Police Acquitted

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Four San Francisco policemen—acquitted last night by a jury of accepting bribes—face another trial to get their jobs back.

The lawmen were accused of accepting $3,900 from owners of two bars frequented by homosexuals to stay away.

Sgts. Alfred Cecchi and Robert McFarland and Patrolman Edward Bigarini and Michael Sugrue must stand trial before the Police Commission Sept. 6. All four are suspended from duty until the next hearing decides their fates.

Army Accused

BERLIN (UPI) — Communist East Germany today accused the U.S. Army of transporting war materials allegedly manufactured in West Berlin to West Germany over Soviet Zone highways.

Signal Bounced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reports a radio signal has been bounced across the Atlantic Ocean off of the orbiting Echo I communications satellite.

The signal was beamed from Holmdel, N.J., and received at a French communications center.

Senegal Pulled Out

DAKAR, Senegal (UPI)—Senegal quit the newly independent Mali Federation today, touching off a new high-tension African crisis that produced no immediate violence.

The Senegalese assembly voted to pull out of the union Senegal formed with the former French Sudan in January, 1959. The federation became independent only two months ago.

SCHOOL BELLS BECKON

Forgotten and ignored during the long summer, schoolhouses like this one-room structure will be the center of attention once again throughout Marin. Union School, on the Petaluma-Pt. Reyes Road, needs painting. Since trustees, clerk, and teacher are all women, a man ended up doing the work. Darryl Pomi, nephew of clerk Mrs. Al Pomi, climbed tower to complete the job. Sixteen students in grades one through seven will return to this schoolhouse.

District Hires 2 Teachers In Fairfax

The Fairfax School District has authorized the hiring of two replacement teachers for Fairfax Central and Deer Park Schools.

Mrs. Colleen Mixon, 22, who is a graduate of the University of Utah with a Bachelor of Science degree, will teach the second grade at Fairfax central next year, reported District Supt. Homer L. Sisk.

Robert Points, 32, a graduate of Kentucky State College with Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees, has had eight years of teaching experience, and will teach the seventh grade at Deer Park School next year, said Sisk.

The pair replace Mrs. Penny Bloom of Fairfax Central and Mrs. Hazel Gravem of Deer Park, both of whom asked to be released from their contracts this summer because of family pressures, Sisk said.

Boy Runs Through Window, Hurts Leg

A 9-year-old boy was injured last night when he ran through a plate-glass window at his home in Kentfield.

CHP Sergeant Puts Out Two Car Fires

Two cars burst into flames and two persons were injured last night in a three-car, rear-end collision on the Puerto Suello Hill north of San Rafael.

The fires were put out by an off-duty California Highway Patrol sergeant who drove by five minutes after the crash.

Frank P. Balistreri, 34, of San Francisco, was driving north on Highway 101 when traffic ahead suddenly stopped. Unable to stop, he crashed his sedan into the car ahead driven by Harold Gene Spaulding, 27, of 1329 Magnolia Avenue, Petaluma, the Highway Patrol reported.

A third car driven by Herbert B. Kartes, 45, of 391 Accacia Street, San Francisco, in turn crashed into the rear end of the Balistreri car.

Balistreri's car broke into flames immediately after the accident. He began scooping dirt up from the side of the road and throwing it on the engine.

At this point Sergeant Vernon E. Dwelly, driving towards his home at 1901 Novato Boulevard, Novato, arrived on the scene. Spotting Balistreri's plight the off-duty patrolman grabbed a fire extinguisher from his pickup and went into action. In minutes he had the fire out, and was walking back to his own truck when Spaulding station wagon also began to go up in smoke. Again Dwelly quenched the flames.

Balistreri was treated at Marin General Hospital for a possible whip lash and his four-year-old daughter for a bump over her left eye. Both were released following treatment.

Balistreri and Kartes were both cited by the Highway Patrol for following too close and driving at speeds unsafe for traffic conditions.

Sausalito Has Planning Pinch

"The heat is on and it gets worse every meeting," Gilbert P. Murphy, Sausalito Planning Commission chairman told the city council Tuesday in stressing the commission's need for a professional planner. He was reporting on planning in the Marinship area.

He investigated the possibility of using a Marin County Planning Department planner, Murphy said. "They are chock full and couldn't give us anything for six months or more." He said the commission has about $600 in the budget toward a planner.

He mentioned three proposed developments in Marinship for which professional planning assistance is needed. These are the shopping center by Heath Land Co., a 75-unit apartment development and a development by A. G. Schoonmaker Co. Murphy said he would present a further Marinship planning report at the council's Sept. 6 meeting.

Novato Cattle Reported Stolen

There is cattle rustling in Novato, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Seven Holstein cows valued at $2,100 were stolen from dairy rancher Germon Medeiros at 799 Sutro Avenue.

He told deputies the cows were about to calve and weighed close to 1,200 pounds each.

Rustlers have been taking the cattle for the past two weeks, he said.

The cows carry different brands—JV, Box X, 69, or Medeiros brand—a lazy G topped with a V.

Skunk Missing, Pet in Novato

If you see a skunk ambling down the main drag in Novato, don't panic.

His owner, Mrs. William Develbiss, says he's "defrosted," and won't stink a bit. She lost him Wednesday night when he slipped his chain at her home at 5 Boulevard Terrace.

Thursday he was seen on Grant Avenue, Novato's main street.

Sally Stanford Charge Dropped

A five-year-old charge that Sausalito night club owner Sally Stanford "is not a fit and proper person to hold an alcoholic beverage license" was dropped today.

The charge, formally dismissed by the State Liquor Department "in the interest of justice," was brought against the owner of the Valhalla Inn, 201 Bridgeway, in 1955 by former state liquor chief Russell S. Munro.

Half-Million Asked In Highway Death

A half million-dollar suit was filed against a Novato truck driver and his employer, the California Trucking Service of Redwood City, in Marin County Superior Court yesterday.

It asked damages for the highway death of Charles J. Swenor of Richmond in Contra Costa County on Aug. 22, 1959.

Swenor was a passenger in a car which collided with a double trailer truck driven by Palmer D. Ellis of 720 Alice Street, Novato.

MARIN FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

5:55 p.m., San Rafael—A light transformer smoking at 1318 Fourth Street; no damage.

El Cerrito Wins State Semi-Pro Title

The East Bay radio team was really on the beam last night as the sensational Bud McGee pitched it to a 7-0 victory over defending champion San Jose Nesbit Masonry in the finals of the state tournament at San Rafael's Albert Field.

It was McGee's fourth tournament victory and his third shutout. In 39 tournament innings the Hatzell ace allowed only two earned runs for a phenomenal .046 earned run average.

Hatzell thus completed the tournament with an undefeated record and has won the right to represent the state in the National Baseball Congress tournament next week in Wichita, Kansas.

However, the champions last night announced they are unable to go to Wichita and have forfeited their entry in the nationals. Second place San Jose, third place Sabella's of San Francisco and fourth place San Anselmo Ongaro Plumbers also rejected the chance to compete in the nationals.

Commissioner S. L. "Brick" Swegle announced this morning that the Club Bob Les of Sacramento has accepted an invitation to represent California in Wichita and will leave by plane tomorrow. The Sacramento team, which won a 20-team tournament in Atwater earlier this summer, will play a benefit game in San Rafael tonight against a combined lineup of players from the Hatzell and San Anselmo teams. Proceeds will be used to help finance the trip to Wichita. (See story on benefit game.)

In handing San Jose one of its rare shutouts McGee gave up only five hits—all singles—struck out eight, walked only three and left seven runners stranded. He struck out the side in the fifth inning.

Right fielder Don Musto was the game's batting star as he drove in the first three runs—singling home Emory Phillips in the first inning and tripling home Gene Faszholz and Phillips in the third.

The Hatzells made it 6-0 in the fourth on two errors, a walk and a key single by Faszholz. The final tally came in the sixth on a single by Faszholz and a pair of errors as the usually sure-handed San Jose team suffered a defensive collapse and wound up with five bobbles.

Faszholz had three hits and Musto a pair. Don Stiles led San Jose with a pair of safeties.

Last night's game was the 46th played during the three-week tournament that started July 29. A total of 24 teams and 384 players participated.

SAN RAFAEL FEATURE

Semi-Pro Champs To Play Benefit

Marin County fans will have the opportunity tonight to watch the team that will represent California in the National Semi-Professional Baseball Tournament in Wichita, Kansas next week.

The Club Bob Les of Sacramento, selected to replace Hatzell Radio of El Cerrito as the state representative in the nationals, will play a benefit game at San Rafael's Albert Field at 8:15 o'clock tonight against an all-star team composed of players from Hatzell Radio and San Anselmo's Ongaro Plumbers. Proceeds will be used to help pay expenses for the trip to Wichita.

The state champion Hatzell team last night forfeited the right to play in the nationals and the Sacramento team immediately was named its replacement. Sacramento earlier this year won a 20-team tournament in Atwater and its lineup includes the great pitching star, Ralph "Blackie" Schwamb.

BLACKIE TO HURL

The Sacramentans also announced they have signed shortstop Don Lauters of San Anselmo to play for them in Wichita. San Anselmo pitcher Bobby DeRosa also may join the Sacramento lineup, depending on how he appears in action tonight.

Pitchers Johnny Oldham and Nate Martinez of San Jose also will play for Sacramento in the nationals.

Giants Get Win Streak Going Again

CHICAGO (UPI)—Can the San Francisco Giants win five straight again—and if so, then what?

The erratic Candlestickers may have suffered their ups and downs this season, but right now they're riding high and a first division finish doesn't appear nearly as improbable as it did a week ago.

San Francisco won its fourth in a row yesterday as young Mike McCormick set down the Chicago Cubs on three hits, 2-1. It marked the Giant southpaw's first triumphant start and finish since June 3.

The last San Francisco won five straight was July 31 at Candlestick Park. Then the Giants were only five and one-half games behind league-leading Pittsburgh. After that they went into a disastrous tailspin, losing 12 of 14.

McCormick, who now sports a 11-8 record, got all the batting support he needed yesterday from Orlando Cepeda and Willie Mays.

The two Giant sluggers each drilled two hits. Cepeda, playing first base, drove in both San Francisco runs on a fourth inning homer with Willie Mays, who had singled, aboard.

McCormick gave up his only tally in the first inning. He walked leadoff man Richie Ashburn, who scored on Ernie Banks' triple. It was Banks' 95th run-batted-in.

The 21-year-old hurler then retired the next 16 batters in order before Bob Will cracked a safety in the sixth. Southpaw Dick Ellsworth (6-9) suffered the loss.

Tacoma Wins As Matty Alou Stars

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The roof fell in on the Spokane Indians last night. San Diego clobbered the Pacific Coast League leaders 19-4.

The defeat followed the Indians' 4-0 win over the Padres in the first game of their doubleheader.

Elsewhere, R. C. Stevens belted his 31st homer as Salt Lake City downed Seattle 5-1, Tacoma beat Vancouver 8-6 and last-place Portland defeated Sacramento 7-1 for the Beavers' third straight victory.

Matty Alou drove in six of Tacoma's eight runs with a fielder's choice, a three-run triple and a two-run single.

2 Marinites On Tourney's All-Star Team

Shortstop Don Lauters and pitcher Bob DeRosa of the San Anselmo Ongaro Plumbers last night were named to the All-Star team selected from among the 384 players who competed in the California State Semi-Pro Championships.

They were the only Marin County players so honored at last night's conclusion of the three-week tournament in which 24 teams participated.

The champion Hatzell Radio club of El Cerrito landed three players on the All-Star team—catcher Jim Johnson, third baseman Nick Cannuli and pitcher Bud McGee.

Decathlon Ace May Miss Shot At Olympics Title

ROME (AP)—The fate of one of the world's great all-around athletes hung in the balance today as factions within the International Olympic Committee wrangled over the name Nationalist China will use in the 1960 games.

He will compete here in the decathlon at the Olympic Games opening Aug. 25 if his nation agrees to enter under the name laid down by the IOC, which would be Taiwan.

There may be a ruckus at the full IOC meeting Monday over what to call Nationalist China, but indications were strong today that Taiwan is the name the IOC will insist on. The Nationalists competed as Taiwan in the pre-Olympic basketball tournament at Bologna, but under protest.

"They would be crazy to pull out," said one Olympic official. "That would open the way to Red China. As long as they compete, Red China will stay away."

Just how good is Yang? Bob Mathias, who won the decathlon for the United States in 1948 and 1952, thinks he can win here.

When Rafar Johnson broke the world record of 8,357 points held by Russia's Vassily Kuznetsov with a mark of 8,683, Yang did 8,426, also over the record. But he failed miserably in the tenth and his best event, the 1,500 meters, because of an injured leg.

If Nationalist China, under whatever name, competes in these games, Yang gets his great chance. If there is a walkout, Yang's hopes will be dashed.

The executive committee of the IOC met in secret session yesterday. There were no official announcements afterwards, but informed sources said the recommendation to the full IOC meeting Monday would be to require Nationalist China to identify itself as Taiwan.

That there could be a fight Monday was indicated by John Jewett Garland, wealthy Los Angeles IOC member, who said:

"I am opposed to using the name of Taiwan. I think they should be called Nationalist China just as in the United Nations."

St. Paul Tourney Lead Shared By Hebert, Casper

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Lionel Hebert and Billy Casper, a couple of heavy set belters, today shared the half-way lead at 133 in the $30,000 St. Paul Open Golf Tournament.

Hebert, of Lafayette, La., picked up a 69 to go with his opening 64.

Casper shaved five strokes off of the Keller course par 72 layout, including an eagle deuce on the 11th hole. The Apple Valley, Calif. golfer clipped it from 80 yards out with a wedge. He shot a 67 after an opening round of 66.

One stroke back of the leaders at 134 were Joe Campbell of New York, the first day co-leader with Hebert, and Don Fairfield of Jacksonville, Ill.

L.A. Chargers Rally In Fog To Defeat Oaklanders, 24-17

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Oakland Raiders could use radar for their two regular season American Football League night games.

They played an exhibition in pea-soup fog last night and lost 24-17 to a bigger, more experienced Los Angeles Charger club.

Raider Coach Eddie Erdelatz, making no excuses, said the fog was just as thick on one side of Kezar Stadium as on the other.

It was thick too, for the 6,531 spectators who at times could see neither the scoreboard nor the other side of the 59,000 seat arena.

The players had visibility problems, especially on kickoffs and punts.

Kezar is in San Francisco's fog belt and the Raiders may well experience the same visibility trouble when they play Dallas at night Sept. 16, and Denver, Dec. 16.

The Raiders, losing their second game in three starts, had a 17-10 half time lead.

DRIVE HALTED

Charger defensive back Dick Harris intercepted his second Tom Flores pass on the Los Angeles one, halting a Raider fourth quarter drive and bringing the Chargers their third straight victory.

Harris, shortly after the third quarter started, had intercepted a Flores pass on the Raider 39 and ran it to the one. Fullback Howie Ferguson then plunged over. Ferguson scored again in the next Charger drive with a nine-yard run.

Flores completed 16 of 39 tosses for 188 yards and one touchdown, a four-yard first quarter heave to Brad Myers.

Charger quarterback Jack Kemp hit 15 of 25 for 232 yards. Speedy Paul Lowe turned one of Kemp's passes into a 43 yard pass-run TD in the second period.

Billy Lott scored the other Raider touchdown on a six-yard run in the second.

Henry Wallace opened the Charger scoring with a 15-yard field goal, matched a few minutes later by Raider Larry Barnes' 29-yard 3-pointer.

49ers Battle Eagles In Practice Tomorrow

The San Francisco 49ers and the Philadelphia Eagles, both definite threats in the coming National Football League campaign, go at it tomorrow in a pre-season practice game at Kezar Stadium.

A crowd of 16,000 is expected for the 1:30 p.m. kickoff.

Both the Western Division 49ers and Eastern Eagles have top rated quarterbacks in Y. A. Tittle and Norm Van Brocklin, but second stringers are expected to do much of the work.

The two teams had 7-5 records in 1959.

As he has for two winning exhibitions, John Brodie, starting his fourth season, is scheduled to work the first half at quarterback for the 49ers with Tittle playing the second.

The 33-year-old Dutchman last week completed 15 of 24 passes for 210 yards and two touchdowns in the Eagles' 20-7 victory over the Los Angeles Rams.

TITTLE HOT

Tittle, in his second half effort against Washington, clicked for eight of nine for 102 yards and two TD's. Brodie hit seven of 12 for 76 yards in the first half.

In halfback Billy Barnes and fullback Clarence Peaks, the Eagles have a pair of swift, powerful ball carriers. The pass catching load rests mainly with flanker Tommy McDonald and ends Pete Retzlaff and Bobby Walston.

Raising 49er hopes is Hugh McElhenny, who delighted the 13,163 paying customers at Kezar last Sunday with a comeback performance that bodes well for the 49ers.

McElhenny carried the ball only 18 times all last season for 67 yards. Last Sunday he carried 11 for 71 yards and caught two passes, one for a touchdown.

Forty-Niner fans will get a look at the club's top draft choices, end Monte Stickles of Notre Dame and guard-tackle Mike Magac of of Missouri.

Stickles and Magac missed the first two exhibitions because of the All-Star game in Chicago.

Smart, Hustling Play Highlights Oakland, L.A. Tilt; Flores Stars

CONNOLLY

What well may become a new era in professional football got under way last night when a small but noisy crowd turned out in Kezar Stadium to look over the Oakland Raiders of the new American Football League. The only sour note of the evening was the confused officials who outguessed themselves and gave a ball stealing pass back to the guy from whom it was stolen. That play occured in the tense third period and cost the Raiders the ball game. The very same kind of a play took place in the dying moments of the struggle, practically on the goal line, and again the officials ruled against the Raiders.

Long, sharp and bullet-like passes featured the 24 to 17 victory of the L.A. Chargers, coached by the former L. A. mentor, Sid Gillman.

Eddie Erdelatz, former Navy coach and a pioneer pro coach in S.F., made his keen ability felt by fielding a smart looking, peppy team that was outweighed but not outfought nor outsmarted.

The one feature of the game, by both teams, was their hustle on and off the field as well as their speedy play during the action. Fewer times were called out, no players were carried off the field with injuries or, if they were, we couldn't see it from the press box. And we'd have had an excellent excuse because you could cut the fog with a knife.

NOBODY BUT a grizzled football filbert would challenge the elements last night. And because of that only 6,500 showed up. But those who did were the noisiest in a long time. They either yelled to keep warm or were so hot on the new league they yelled to keep cool.

The Raiders' Tom Flores, former College of Pacific star, opened the eyes of all present with his passing and roll-out runs. After watching him you wonder why a guy with such speed and agility to duck tacklers developed such a flare for throwing. He pitches football passes like a Don Drysdale of the Dodgers.

Billy Lott, a shifty and husky back, did most of the pass catching for Flores and looked nifty doing it. He runs well, swerves like an old rugby star and all in all this pair of gridiron standouts might gain a lot of favorable recognition before the new league and its new season is much older.

THE CHARGERS, with Jack Kemp at quarterback, uncorked too much know-how behind a hefty charging line to bring victory to the southerners. But, all in all and between the fog and the wind and cold, both teams deserved iron crosses for their hustling spirit.

The Oaklanders, playing in a foreign city, may never equal the 49ers for support, but they'll certainly make the S.F. National League club sit up and take notice of what real smart coaching can do to cast-off young men with DESIRE.

The early exhibition play of the pros is going to continue to hit a sour note for awhile, but I believe when the regular season is under way and the chips are down both the Raiders and the 49ers will do okay.

Visalia Defeated In Little League Regional Playoff

PHOENIX, Ariz (AP) — South Boulder, Colo., and East Lakewood, Calif., meet tonight to decide the championship of the western Little League baseball tournament.

South Boulder moved into the finals yesterday with a 2-1 victory over Vancouver, B.C., while East Lakewood drubbed Visalia, Calif., 8-0. Tonight's winner moves on to the national finals next week at Williamsport, Pa.

Battling for third place here tonight will be Vancouver and Visalia.

Visalia last week won the Northern California championship and the trip to Phoenix by nipping the Twin Cities All-Stars of Larkspur-Corte Madera, 2-1.

FIFTY YEARS WED — Proudly displaying pictures of two of their grandchildren are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kirsner of 126 Spring Grove Avenue, San Rafael. The couple will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary tomorrow at a dinner at the Hamilton Air Force Base Officers' Club.

IN MEDITERRANEAN—Midshipman 1/c Bruce W. Churchill of 120 Kinross Drive, San Rafael, operates signal light on aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt. He was on a summer training cruise in the Mediterranean with the Sixth Fleet. Churchill is a member of the class of 1961 at the U.S. Naval Academy.

MEALS ON TIME

San Rafael Couple Married 50 Years

"Tell young people if they want to keep a husband, have clean clothes for him and his meals on time."

That's the advice of Mrs. Bessie Kirsner, who has taken good care of her husband, Harry, for 50 years.

The couple, who live at 126 Spring Grove Ave., in San Rafael, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Sunday. They met in Oakland at the home of Mrs. Kirsner's sister, and were married there Aug. 21, 1910.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirsner have lived in Marin since 1921. Kirsner established the Marin County Wholesale Produce Co., the first man to operate a wholesale fruit and produce business here. He also was the first to bring in fruit and vegetables by truck instead of the railroad.

The Kirsners also operated retail fruit stores in San Rafael, Larkspur, San Anselmo and Mill Valley.

Kirsner, 73, and his wife, 70 on her next birthday, are both natives of Russia. He came to this country about 1907 and she arrived about 1908.

They have two daughters, Mrs. Sarah Mizel of San Francisco, who has a daughter, Marjorie, and son, Bernard, and Mrs. Mildren Schwartzberg of Novato, who has a daughter, Linda, and son, Stephen.

Three of the grandchildren are married, and the Kirsners are looking forward eagerly to the birth of their first great-grandchild in December to their granddaughter, Marjory.

"We are very proud of them," the couple say, smiling.

Both are members of B'nai B'rith and the Senior Citizens. Mrs. Kirsner also belongs to the Sisterhood and Hadassah.

They have a beautiful garden and patio adjoining their home. "My only hobby is taking care of the garden," says Mrs. Kirsner.

The Kirsners will be the guests of honor at an anniversary dinner being given by their two daughters tomorrow at the officers' club at Hamilton Air Force Base. Their daughter, Mildred, is the wife of Harry Schwantzberg, a retired Air Force lieutenant-colonel. About 28 members of the family and friends will attend the celebration.

New Eatery For Tiburon

Construction on a 6,000-square-foot restaurant on Main Street in Tiburon, overlooking the bay, will be started about Nov. 1 and take approximately five months to complete, Frederick G. Zelinsky of Belvedere, the builder and developer, announced yesterday.

The second floor cafe, which may be one of the largest in Marin County, will be operated by Ernest Van Asperen of San Rafael, owner of a chain of liquor stores.

Mario Gaidano of San Francisco is the architect.

Under the restaurant, at the street level, Zelinsky plans to lease out a series of arcade and patio shops.

Fatigue Reduced

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A self-aligning seat cushion designed by researchers at the University of California campus here has succeeded in reducing driver fatigue.

Schools Approved

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The state has approved enough new school building during the first six months of this year to provide facilities for 72,000 pupils. The projects approved will cost about 90 million dollars and require nearly 54 million dollars in state aid.

Phone Rate Explanations Solicited

The San Geronimo Valley Assn. has decided to ask the Pacific Telephone Co. to send a representative to the association's next meeting to discuss and explain a new proposed rate change for the valley.

(The California Public Utilities Commission recently approved an application of the telephone company to establish a special rate area in San Geronimo Valley to improve services to subscribers. Rates would be increased by 50 cents to $1 per month, depending on the type of service and would go into effect sometime after Jan. 1.)

Association secretary Georgette Vilas reported that a committee has been appointed to "clean up, paint and beautify" a bus shelter donated several years ago by the association to Forest Knolls.

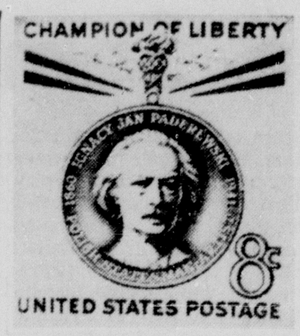
The association now involved in a membership drive, accepted 10 new members, said Mrs. Vilas.

The association's next regular meeting will be Sept. 20.

Christmas Seal Letters Prepared

Plans are under way to prepare 36,000 Marin County letters to go out from the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Assn. offices at 801 B Street in San Rafael as part of the annual Christmas Seal campaign.

Mrs. Helen Hoxie, president of the association, said the campaign will open Nov. 14.



HONORED—The likeness of Ignancy Jan Paderewski, Polish pianist, composer and statesman, is on the new eight-cent "Champion of Liberty" stamp to be placed on sale by the Post Office Department Oct. 8. Also it will be issued in a four-cent denomination. (AP Wirephoto)

GOP Headquarters Opens In Novato

Republican campaign headquarters in Novato opened today with free refreshments for all comers and a chance to shake the hand of a 60-vote man.

Frank Seamas, 87, of Novato, appeared for the opening. He has voted 60 times during his life. Headquarters are at 928 Grant Avenue and will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. six days a week.

Mrs. Robert Cunningham is in charge of the headquarters. Gordon Walker is Novato campaign manager, and Ed Grundstrom, Novato attorney, is fifth district Republican chairman.

Woman To Manage Services Unit

The Marinwood Community Services District board has hired Mrs. Fred Bolding of 536 Miller Creek Road as its business manager-secretary.

She replaces Mrs. Helen Baznik, who resigned. The position pays $50 a month.

Mrs. Bolding has a degree in business administration from San Jose State College and has had business experience. She was selected from four candidates for the position.

The board decided to retain a surveyor and appraiser to give advice on sites and approximate cost for a firehouse on Las Gallinas Avenue and a recreation and community area on Miller Creek Road.

A special meeting will be held next Thursday at 8 p. m. at Silveira School to decide on salaries for the fire department and select a surveyor and appraiser.

The board also instructed the firm of Allen, Bettini and Carter to provide insurance coverage for the district.

It approved a petition for street lights from residents of unit six, and authorized the fire department to spend up to $160 to have a jeep engine rebuilt.

Novato Exam Due For Police Chief

Novato's newly appointed city administrator, J. Julien Baget, will not be able to sit in on the oral examination board for prospective city police chiefs.

Baget informed Mayor Wayne Womack by telephone that commitments in his present city manager post in Ojai in Ventura County would prevent his attending the examination Wednesday.

Baget told the mayor that he would interview candidates following the examination by Marin Sheriff Louis Mountanos, police chiefs of Berkeley and Palo Alto and Novato administrative consultant Robert O. Bailey. Five men have passed written examinations for the chief post.

City councilmen at Tuesday's council meeting had discussed postponing the oral technical examination until Baget could be present, but have decided to continue without him.

City policing now is being done by sheriff's deputies who also have been appointed city police. The contract for the service with the county expires Oct. 1.

Fluoridation Vote Slated In Capital

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Capital city residents will decide at the November election whether they want fluoridation of the city water supply.

City counciimen agreed yesterday to put the issue on the ballot, but made it clear that the council is taking a neutral stand.

EVE BLACK PLANS NUPTIAL CEREMONY FOR SEPT. 3

Wedding plans are being completed by Eve Black and Jerry Hodes. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Black of Larkspur. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hodes of Los Angeles are parents of the future benedict.

The ceremony will be at 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 3, in the Room of the Dons at the Mark Hopkins Hotel in San Francisco. Eve's only sister, Sherrye Black of Larkspur will be maid of honor and Sam Hodes of Los Angeles will be best man for his brother. The couple will reside in Los Angeles after a two weeks' honeymoon in Mexico City.

The bride-elect, who has a brother, Bruce Black of Larkspur, and is the granddaughter of Mrs. Pauline Goldrod of San Francisco, is a graduate of Washington High School in San Francisco and College of Marin. She will continue her studies in radiological technology at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital in Los Angeles.

Jerry, who received his education in Los Angeles, spent two years with the Army in Europe and is now in business with his brother, Sam, in Los Angeles. He has another brother, Morrie Hodes of Los Angeles, and two sisters, Renee Hodes of Los Angeles and Mrs. Al Silver of San Rafael.

Mother-Daughter Luncheon Planned By Sparks Aug. 24

A mother-daughter luncheon is being scheduled by the Sparks of the Southern Marin Recreation Center for the next in their monthly series of parties. The luncheon will be held next Wednesday, Aug. 24 at 12:30 p.m. and reservations must be made by Monday by calling either Mrs. Kent Beardsley or Mrs. John Hoffmire, both of Little Reed Heights.

Feature of the luncheon will be a "back-to-school" fashion show featuring fashions from a shop on the Belvedere Boardwalk. Two groups will model including younger girls and teen-agers.

Mrs. Alan Cundall and Mrs. John Del Mar are in charge of the younger group which includes Bill and Kelly Cundall, Corinne Del Mar, Tina Mercer, Kathy, Linda and Leslie Samilson, Marty and Beth Stanton, Kathy Rieger, Kim Hahn, Claudia Wilson, Mary Hoefer, Leslie and Allison Whitelaw and Melinda Noll.

Teen-agers who will both model and assist with the younger group are Connie Vigno, Vicky Stevens, Joy McKee, Roxy Taft, Honore Cummings, Tina Bertrand, Barbara Baldridge, Kim Brash, Melinda Moore, Diane Allegra, Patty Benkert and Connie, Karen, Cathy and Cubby Atterbury. Cubby is assisting Mrs. William Carroll with the arrangements for this group.

Hostesses for the luncheon will be Mrs. Edward Dill and Mrs. Lucretia Grace.

Appointments to the board of directors of the Sparks have been announced by Mrs. Lloyd Stark, president. They are Mrs. Robert Bilger, chairman of the office work committee and Mrs. Douglas Patten, painting committee chairman.

The Sparks will be selling box lunches during the Labor Day festivities on Monday, September 5.

Grundhausers Bid Farewell To Two

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Grundhauser of San Rafael bid their son and daughter farewell Wednesday night. The young people are making their homes in different parts of the country. Mr. and Mrs. Coy L. Baker (Arlene Jo Grundhauser) will live in Powell, Wyo., where Coy, who has completed army service, will resume farming. They are married on April 1.

William K. Grundhauser and his bride, the former Elizabeth A. Dapiran, will reside in Long Beach where Bill, who is in the Navy, is on board the USS Belle Grove. The young Grundhausers were married on Aug. 13. Elizabeth is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Dapiran of San Anselmo.

MARIN'S SOCIAL WHIRL

Many Preparing For Opera Season

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Opera season is almost on us and many Marin women are buying glamorous gowns and luxurious wraps for the opening. This will be Sept. 16 with Tosca as the opera. And always a big event on the first night is the champagne reception at the San Francisco Museum of Art when the operatic stars are honored.

The George Goheens of Mill Valley are devotees of the opera of long standing. For 17 years they have been attending all the performances. Betty has ordered her gown for the opening and with all this flurry she has managed to do much entertaining. Soon after she and George returned from their six weeks' European trip they opened their home at Pinecrest. There hasn't been a weekend there without guests. Recently they entertained the Merrill Browns and the Robert Partridges of San Francisco and Mr. and Mrs. Brantley Eubanks of Piedmont.

Coming up is a big weekend but not at Pinecrest. The Goheens will spend the Labor Day weekend at Carnelian Bay with a group of friends. Among these will be Dr. Leo Stanley who'll be just home from a cruise to the Orient, and his wife and erstwhile Marinites, the Charles Fulchers of San Francisco and Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Scovel of Sacramento.

THE SHAKESPEAREAN Festival in Ashland, Ore. has attracted a number of Marinites, as usual. The Clayton Drews of Corte Madera are in Ashland now and plan to spend some time at Lake Tahoe on their return.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Baker of San Rafael were in Ashland, Aug. 12 and 13 and saw two of the festival's four productions, The Tempest and Richard II. Mr. Baker is president of the San Francisco Council of the Great Books Foundations and he and his wife took part in the group discussions held the mornings following the plays.

FOR NICARAGUA Mr. and Mrs. Morton Lieberman of Belvedere will leave early in September. They will be there for five months as Mort will be working under the International Cooperation Administration on the United States' technical aid program. His job will be to assist with the country's water supply program on both a national level and specific projects. He returned from India in May where he was engaged on a similar project.

AROUND THE WORLD the Lawrence A. Cowens are flying. They have made two trips to Europe and this time they will go to the continent first and then visit countries they had never seen before. They left last night by plane for New York. Then they go to London, Madrid, Paris, Vienna, Budapest, Rome. They fly from there to Tel Aviv, then to Teheran, New Delhi, Calcutta, Singapore, Hong Kong, Tokyo, Honolulu and back to San Francisco.

Among the affairs given in the visitors honor were a dinner party at the home of the George Turnbulls of Mill Valley and a breakfast at the Mill Valley home of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Culmer. Next week they will be guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fox of Berkeley.

A NUMBER of Marin friends attended the cocktail party the Frank Timberlakes of San Francsico gave last night honoring his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William Clagett of Berryville, Va., who are visiting here with their two young daughters. The Timberlakes' dagnter, Mimi, is a student at Katherine Branson School. Also for the Clagetts a cocktail party was given on Wednesday night by Mrs. Claire Zwieg Eyster, who knew the visitors well when she lived in the East.

A group of young bachelors will join forces for a Peanut Ball to be held at the Nicasio ranch home of the John Ziels on Aug 28 which will be attended by a number of this year's debutantes. Honored will be Phoebe Giagiani, Vickie Sloss, Cindy Sutcliffe, Linda Hansen, Patty Somers, Lucie Harris, Vicki Escamilla, Diantha McLaughlin, Cappy Detert and Candy Hazard. Hosts will be the Ziels' son, John, and Dick Blackman, Tom Hickey, Peter O'Hara, Tom Griffith, John Luce, Peter Michael, Bruce Douglass, Sunny Halsted and George Winkel.

In contrast to the big formal affairs for debutantes this will be a simple dance in the barn on the ranch with formal garb the thing. Thus came the name of "Peanut Ball."

Norma Hargreaves Weds Robert Shane

Norma Hargreaves and Robert E. Shane were married recently at Mission San Rafael Arcangel by Rev. John Petroni. Norma's hand was given in marriage by her father, Arlin Hargreaves of San Rafael.

Nine tiers of lace over satin formed the skirt of Norma's bridal gown. It was fashioned with a scoop neckline bordered wth sequins and long lace sleeves. Her elbow-length veil was held in place by a seeded pearl crown. Norma's bouquet was made of white stephanotis, a purple-hearted orchid and butterfly orchids.

Deanna Vigna of Gilroy, a friend of the bride since they were both five years old, was maid of honor. She wore a full-skirted dress of pastel blue satin with three-quarter length sleeves and carried a nosegay of white and blue stephanotis. A veil hat and accessories were in blue.

Bridesmaids were Patricia Johnson of San Anselmo, Marlene Claudson of San Francisco, Karen Hall of San Anselmo, and Sandra Meadows of San Rafael. Their dresses of pink chiffon were fashioned with softly gathered skirts. They wore matching veils and carried nosegays of white and pink stephanotis.

Kathy Branam of Mill Valley as flower girl carried a miniature nosegay of white and pink stephantis to go with her pink dress. Robert Bixby of San Francisco was the ring bearer.

Ushering duties were performed by Donald Hargreaves of San Rafael, brother of the bride; Arlin Anderson of Sunol, cousin of the bride; Leo Barbour of San Anselmo and Richard Green of San Francisco.

Duane (DeeDee) Haney of San Rafael, contralto soloist, sang "O Most Holy One."

Mrs. Hargreaves chose a blue lace sheath dress for her daughter's wedding. It was designed with a scalloped scoop neckline, short sleeves, and with a a blue chiffon cummerbund that fell softly to one side. She wore a matching feather hat with veil.

A reception for more than 200 guests was held at the Tamalpais Centre Women's Club. The bride's table covered with a lace tablecloth held a four-tier wedding cake with candles beside it. Mrs. Farrell Anderson of Sunol, aunt of the bride, took charge of the guest book.

Norma and Robert departed on a week-long honeymoon at Carmel. They are at home now at 1005 Wagnon Road in Petaluma.

Norma is a graduate of San Rafael High School and before her marriage worked as a policy typist for a San Francisco insurance firm.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Arlin Hargreaves of San Rafael. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Elvira Peterson of Vancouver, Wash., and of Mr. and Mrs. George Hargreaves of Sonoma.

The bridegroom is a son of Mrs. Middagh of San Rafael and Robert A. Shane of Emmett, Idaho. His step-father, Floyd R. Middagh, is chief civil deputy in the Marin County sheriff's office. He is a grandson of Mrs. Fantry of Denver, Colo., and of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Smit of Nyssa, Ore.

Robert is employed by Marin County Abstract and Title Co. in San Rafael. He is a graduate of Emmett High School in Emmett, Idaho, Idaho, and attended the University of Idaho two years and the California Maritime Academy one year.

MRS. RONALD LEE O'ROURKE, the former Catherine Edith Detweiler. The bride and bridegroom, who are both seniors at the University of Oregon, eloped to Reno. Announcement of the marriage was made at a dinner party at the home of Catherine's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Detweiler of San Anselmo.

Catherine Detweiler Married In Nevada

At a recent dinner party for relatives and friends the former Catherine Edith Detweiler and Ronald Lee O'Rourke announced that they had decided not to wait, as previously planned, until next June to get married and had eloped to Reno to be married instead. They will have an apartment in Eugene, Ore., in September and continue their education at the University of Oregon where both are seniors. After receiving their degrees next June they plan to return to the Bay Area where Ron has a position with his family's realty firm awaiting him.

Catherine, daughter of the John S. Detweilers of San Anselmo, is a 1957 graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School. At the University of Oregon she has lived at the Alpha Chi Omega sorority house for three years. She has a sister, Susan, who was graduated from Drake this past June and who will enter Wellesley College in Massachusetts this Fall. A brother, John, is a senior at Drake. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Koons of Laguna and Rev. J. F. Detweiler of Alhambra.

Ronald is the only child of Mrs. Leone Webb O'Rourke and Robert V. O'Rourke of San Francisco. His grandparents are Mrs. Genevieve Lindgren of San Francisco and Leicester C. Webb of Palo Alto. He attended Jefferson High School where he was student body president and an all-state football star. During his year at San Mateo Junior College he was captain of the football team. He received a scholarship to the University of Oregon where a scrimmage injury prevented his continuing in football. His fraternity is Sigma Chi.

RECEPTION WILL FETE MUSIC CHEST ARTIST TOMORROW

Many buffet supper parties, luncheons, and dinners preceding and following Eugene Istomin's recital Sunday afternoon in Forest Meadows, have been planned, and among the largest of these social events, is a reception honoring Mr. Istomin, to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Scott of Belvedere, after the concert.

Mrs. Scott, president of the Marin Music Chest under whose auspices this great pianist is appearing, has invited members of the Music Chest executive board, artistic council and a few close friends to her home following the Istomin recital.

Mr. Istomin is the third artist to appear this year on the Music Chest Summer Series, and will be followed by an evening performance of the San Francisco Ballet, August 28. This is the closing event for the 1960 season and many social events are being planned for this date.

EUGENE ISTOMIN, famed pianist, who will be honored at a reception tomorrow following his concert for the Marin Music Chest at Forest Meadows.

Deer Park P-TA Plans For Term

Deer Park Parent-Teacher Assn. held its first executive board meeting on Thursday, in the multi-purpose room of the school to outline the program for the school year.

Many events are scheduled for the coming months, according to Mrs. William E. Drummond, president. Among these will be Back-to-School night, Junior Museum exhibit, Halloween Carnival, Christmas parties, pot luck dinner, fashion show and talent show.

Headlining this busy schedule will be the Teachers Luncheon to be held on Friday, Sept. 2, at 1:15 p.m. in the Multi-use Room. Salads will be served at this get-acquainted affair to be given through the combined efforts of the Fairfax Central and Deer Park P-TA membership who will furnish and serve the food and refreshments.

Busy Schedule Set By Sidney Murmans

Departing via Glacier National Park for a brief vacation, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney P. Murman of San Anselmo left Thursday to attend the American Bar Convention which convenes in Washington, D.C., on Aug. 28. Mr. Murman represents the firm of Hadsell, Murman & Bishop, with offices in San Francisco and San Rafael, in the section of the American Bar on Insurance, Compensation and Accident Law which will be holding meetings during the convention at the Shoreham Hotel. While in Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Murman will be the house guests of Dr. and Mrs. Mascolm Henderson at their home located at 2900 29th Street N. W.

Following the convention, Mr. Murman will perform two weeks active duty for training in the Office of the Judge Advocate General of the Navy. Mr. Murman holds the rank of captain in the Naval Reserve law specialist classification. While Captain Murman is on duty, Mrs. Murman expects the time to pass swiftly while she attends the special session of Congress as an observer of both presidential candidates in action in the Senate.

Upon completion of his active duty, Mr. Murman will resume his civilian status and proceed with Mrs. Murman to New York via Princeton for another brief vacation. The stopover in Princeton is occasioned by the reregistration of their son, Earll Murman, for the sophomore year. Earll is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School. At Princeton he is specializing in aeronautical engineering. Mr. and Mrs. Murman will meet Earll at Princeton and spend a few days with him before classes start on Sept. 19.

After leaving New York, Mr. and Mrs. Murman will visit Mrs. Murman's niece, Mrs. Joseph Oxley of Columbus, Ohio, and then proceed on to San Francisco. In addition, there will be short business stopovers in Seattle, Minneapolis and Chicago eastbound and in Denver westbound. The Murmans expect to return to San Anselmo about Oct. 1.

Versatile Artist Heard In Recital

Mrs. Joan E. Liebeskind, treasurer of the Marin County Branch of the California Music Teachers Association, presented a very talent pupil, Sharon Sanders of Novato, in a recital at her home on Sunday afternoon.

Sharon sang the Lord's Prayer and My Shadow by Henry Hadley and then played piano solos, Prelude and Palonaise by Chopin and Deux Trabesque by Debussy. She concluded her program with a duet, playing with Mrs. Liebeskind Overture to Oberon by Weber.

Following the recital Mrs. Liebeskind served a barbecue dinner. Guests were Sharon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Sanders of Novato, her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Claus Harders of Valley and friends.

Junior Music Club

At the recent meeting of Tamalpais Junior Music Club at Redwood High School, piano solos were played by John Spillane, Mary Elliott, Carol Shenson, Geoffrey Gicker, Deborah Chamberlin, Vicki Giacotto, Suzette Little, Robin Little and Florence Nelson.

Two Draw Fines In Deer Shootings

Two coastal deer hunters were fined by Judge David R. Baty this week in the Justice Court of the Northwest Judicial District at Inverness.

John McAndrew of Petaluma was fined $100 for shooting a doe near Point Reyes Station on Aug. 9.

A $50 fine was imposed, and one deer tag was confiscated, in the case of N. R. Cherrigan of Inverness because he had shot a spike buck on the opening day of the season Aug. 6.

Boat Harbor Plans Detailed At Meeting

Marin County was well represented yesterday at a day-long conference in San Francisco on shallow draft harbors and small boats, sponsored by the California State Chamber of Commerce.

The group of nearly a dozen Marinites heard Col. Helmer A. Holstrom, new assistant division engineer from the South Pacific Division, Army Engineers, review the corps' plans for development of coastal and bay harbors for small boats.

The present program includes "consideration and improvement of 21 new coastal harbors including Pt. Reyes Cove, Tomales Bay and Bolinas Bay, the colonel said. In addition, Belvedere harbor and Richardson Bay are two of the five separate authorizations for shallow-draft harbors in San Francisco Bay.

He said it would take at least until 1968 to complete the entire program.

A study of Bodega Bay is also under way and will be completed in 1961.

Lachlan M. Richards, chief of the State Small Craft Harbors Division, reported on the accident rate in small craft since accident report was required last April. There have been 25 deaths and many more injuries in the period, as well as damage to 104 boats in 124 reported accidents, he said.

Maxwell M. Willens, vice chairman of the Small Craft Harbors Commission, was the luncheon speaker. Adm. Ira E. Eskridge of the Coast Guard and Peter J. Coniglio, Monterey fishing industry attorney, also spoke in the afternoon.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Help Your First Grader To Get Off To Good Start In Schooling

Starting the first grade was one of the biggest adventures of your life. Remember? Do you have a child starting this fall? He's just as excited as you were, and just as worried.

Will he get off to a good start? Then the next 12 years will be pleasant. Will he make a bad start? Then he'll have years of misery. The first grade sets the pattern.

What should you expect during the year ahead? Several things. To begin with, he'll be afraid. He'll be enthusiastic and hopeful. But afraid, too. Plan to go with him on the opening day. While there, stay at the back of the room. Don't say anything. Don't interfere with the teaching. But be there. Don't let your child think you've deserted him at this crisis in his life. Stay until he tells you to go.

Expect quite a delay before he starts his reading activities. The teacher will give all the children tests to determine their readiness to read. She'll put them in groups according to the results. Some will start reading activities soon afterwards. Others won't. A few will not be ready for weeks or even months.

Expect your first grader to have ups and downs. One day things will be fine. He'll come home happy. The next day he'll have troubles. Reassure him when he feels low. Follow the suggestions the teacher makes. When you have questions, ask her.

Plan to spend time at school. Get well acquainted with his teacher. Consider her your partner. Talk with his principal. Join the P-TA. You may be asked to be a room mother. If so, I hope you'll accept. The more familiar you are with school the more successfully you can help your first grader. And he may need help.

READERS' FORUM

(Q) "Is the P-TA really worthwhile? Or is it just a way to keep a lot of nosy women busy?"—F.P.

(A) I can testify that the P-TA is very worthwhile. The understanding and support of schools by P-TA members is what makes educational progress possible in many places.

Lakeport All Set For County Fair

Lakeport is all set for its Lake County Fair and Horse Show over the Labor Day weekend, Sept. 2 to 4.

Horse shows are set for Friday and Saturday nights, Sept. 2 and 3, with trick riding and wild pony chariot races. Roping polo is on Saturday.

A parachute jump is scheduled for 5 p. m. Saturday. Highlights of the fair will be free pears for visitors to sample, pear milkshakes and pear pies.

Big Enrollment Expected At Seminary

A record high enrollment is expected when the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry opens Aug. 29 for the school's 17th session, and its second on its present campus, according to seminary dean Dr. William A. Carleton.

Last year's enrollment was 357 with students representing 34 states, eight foreign countries and the District of Columbia.

Dr. J. Lyn Elder, professor of pastoral care at the seminary, will open the 1960-61 term officially with an address at the convocation service at 9:45 a.m., Aug. 30.

He will speak on "The Nature and Function of the Pastoral Ministry."

The president's reception, first fall social event for the seminary family, will be held Monday, Aug. 29 at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Harold K. Graves.

Dr. Carleton said that four courses will be offered at night in addition to the 67 courses and seminars scheduled as day classes.

Berwyn Rice Asks Divorce

Berwyn A. Rice, San Rafael attorney who once represented convict-author Caryl Chessman, filed suit for divorce in Marin County Superior Court yesterday.

He charged his wife, Beryl, with cruelty.

Rice lives with his two children, Kent, 14, and Candice, 12, at 310 Forbes Avenue, San Rafael. The couple separated in June of 1958.

Mrs. Rice lives in Honolulu. They have been married 15 years.

He asks division of community property which includes their San Rafael home and law practice, a single-engine airplane, and a dry cleaning business in Honolulu.

The petition asks the court to determine the care and custody of the children.

Music Chest Present Pianist

American pianist Eugene Istomin will make his first appearance in a Marin Music Chest summer concert series at 3 p.m. tomorrow at Forest Meadows, Dominican College, San Rafael.

Because of construction work in this area, persons may enter the grounds from Grand Avenue or from Belle Avenue, but no cars will be permitted to park on the lower end of Watt Avenue. Parking will be provided for a few cars on the Coleman School grounds.

The concert series will close Aug. 28 with a performance by the San Francisco Ballet.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

We Wonder If Powers Ever Heard Of Nathan Hale

Our history teacher taught us the story. It was about a young school teacher, one who had been planning to enter the ministry. One day, about 185 years ago, he wrote his father that "a sense of duty" was urging him "to sacrifice everything for my country."

He entered the army and soon became a captain. After the defeat and retreat of the American army at Long Island, it was all important to Gen. George Washington to know the plans of the enemy. He asked for volunteers, and this young man applied.

Disguised as a Dutch school master he entered the British camp and made full drawings and memorandum of all the desired information. But on his return journey he was apprehended, tried and sentenced to death.

Today a similar drama is being enacted. The only difference is that then it was a hot war; now a cold war. A young American fighting man has been captured while spying for his country. His equipment was plane and camera, rather than sketch pad and memo book.

Now on trial he has testified he is "sorry I had any part" in the project, that he did his "dangerous and unpleasant job" for the money; that he didn't know how to operate the cameras, "I just turned on the switches"; that he did not know how to destroy his plane.

This American pilot "could not kill a person even to save my own life," and said he did his country "a very bad service" by flying the spy flight.

We wonder if Francis Gary Powers ever heard the story of Nathan Hale and his dying words: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BRICKBAT to persons unknown who smashed nine brand new sedans against one another on a San Rafael car lot without giving them any chance to get out and do it on the highway.

BOUQUETS to the Ongaro Plumbers baseball team of San Anselmo, which did Marin proud by battling as far as the quarter finals in the State Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament in San Rafael.

BOUQUETS TOO to their young counterparts, the Twin Cities Little League All-Stars who lost in the last inning of the finals of the California Northern Division Championship in Roseville.

A BOUQUET to the San Rafael drive-in theater which planned a dark to dawn all-night show featuring a film called "Wake Me When It's Over."

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

BE DARING, YET CAUTIOUS

A 27-year-old man saw a tidal wave for the first and last time last May in Hilo, Hawaii.

Along with a group of other Honolulu engineers, who specialized in anti-tidal wave sea walls, he went to nearby Hilo to see how a predicted tidal wave would affect their installations.

The day after the tremendous wave had struck, his body was found among the debris.

In confronting the powerful, destructive forces of our day, make sure to blend prudence with daring.

By carelessly exposing yourself, you may not only defeat the remedy you seek to achieve but may be an unwitting accomplice in furthering the harm you dread.

On the other hand, avoid going to the other extreme. Running away from moral danger instead of taking reasonable steps to remedy it may jeopardize your own salvation and that of others.

Combine courage with restraint and God will bless you.

"Put out into the deep, and lower your nets for a catch." (Luke 5:4)

Grant, O Holy Spirit, that I may know the difference between being daring and reckless.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

John Jacob Astor will be remembered for his gracious admission, "A man who only has a million dollars can be just as happy as if he was rich."

Chided once for not being too charitable, Mr. Astor grumbled, "I wish the papers would stop saying I have 60 million dollars. I haven't a cent over thirty-two millions!"

Mark Twain observed that Mr. Astor's money however, was twice tainted: " 'taint yours and 'taint mine."

An enterprising Forida realtor has attracted plenty of attention with a new sign on his development: "GET LOTS WHILE YOU'RE YOUNG!"

The Country Parson

"The meanest trick God could play on some folks would be to give them everything for which they ask."

CONFERENCE SHOWS

U.S. Youth Favors Big Government

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — The nation's representative young people and youth workers favor big government, look to Washington for financial and policy solutions to many of the nation's most important problems and are strong backers of civil rights.

That was the picture for American youth that emerged from a Congressional Quarterly study of the recommendations of the 1960 White House Conference on Children and Youth, recently published.

About 7,500 delegates, 1,400 of them between 16 and 21 years old, attended the conference last spring. The 18 forums came up with 670 recommendations, including several dozen directly involving federal legislation.

FOREMOST AMONG the recommendations were that all states comply as soon as possible with the 1954 Supreme Court decision ordering the desegregation of schools; that more adequate educational facilities be provided at all levels; that the nation take steps to improve living and working conditions; that discrimination be eliminated from all aspects of American life.

The White House Conference on Children and Youth, held March 27 to April 2 in Washington, was called by President Eisenhower in May, 1958. Its 18 forums were broken into smaller work shops in which youth and youth workers discussed, argued and attempted to clarify the problems they faced

THIS WAS THE SIXTH decennial conference of its nature. Youth Conferences have been held every 10 years since President Theeodore Roosevelt convened the first White House Conference on the Care of Dependent Children in 1909. That conference was partly responsible for the establishment of the U. S. Children's Bureau in 1912.

Among specific 1960 recommendations for action by the federal government were:

COMMUNITY FACILITIES —More federal and state support for better housing in all categories, including low-rent public housing, middle-income housing and housing specifically for young married couples; and for water pollution control, residential planning and slum clearance.

EDUCATION—Federal aid to public education and the establishment of a comprehensive federal scholarship and fellowship program, without loyalty oath requirements, and an expanded federal program for college housing and other facilities.

WELFARE SERVICES—Increased federal and state aid to welfare services, including periodic physical and dental examinations for all children.

LABOR—The establishment of youth conservation camps; federal relief for depressed areas; raising the minimum wage to $1.25 an hour; improving the conditions of farm and migrant workers. Specifically, the conference recommended that the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act, which sets minimum wages, be extended to include farm and migrant laborers and that federal facilities be established to provide better education, health and welfare services for the children of migrant workers. The conference also recommended that states revise their unemployment laws to increase payments to 50 per cent of the individual's wages, for a period of 39 weeks.

DISCRIMINATION — Immediate abolition of discriminatory practices which deny equal opportunities in education, employment and public places. For housing, the conference recommended the adoption of federal regulations prohibiting segregation in federal housing projects and requiring that any houses constructed with federal funds be made available without racial, religious or color restrictions. The conference also strongly urged that the federal government and state legislatures pass Fair Employment Practices legislation.

Young Demos Start Organization, MAD

By CHAPIN A. DAY

A group of enthusiastic young Democrats have formed a new political organization in Marin County in order to take an active part in politics without being "straight-jacketed" by their elders' party organization.

DAY

In a way the new group is a compliment to the county's Young Republican organization, for the young Democrats felt the need of something like the YRs.

At a meeting this week they selected the name Marin Associated Democrats. But they insist that their initials, MAD, do not indicate their state of mind.

Organizational chairmen have been set up for various county areas. Among these are Robert Praetzel, San Anselmo; Robert Franchini, Fairfax; Ernie Ornellas, Santa Venetia; Rosemary Barker, Tiburon Peninsula, and Tom Barrington, Sausalito. Others on the organizing committee, of which Mrs. Barker is chairman, include Fred Stopsky and Carol Anderson of San Anselmo, and Sally McNichol, Irene Oakland and Jane McGuire of Sausalito.

First function of the group will be next Friday night, a no-host cocktail party, buffet and dance at the Wye Club in San Rafael. First business meeting is slated Aug. 31 at San Rafael Democratic headquarters.

Three members of the Democratic County Central Committee assisted in launching the organization: Ed McCarthy, Mary Weiss and Gerald Hill.

ELEVEN MARINITES are listed on a citizens committee opposing passage of Prop. 15 on the November ballot, the proposition which would redistrict the State Senate. Included are chairmen of both the Republican and Democratic county central committees and the Democratic state chairman and national committee woman.

Listed among the organizing members are Alice D. Yarish, Novato; Dave Winslow, Tiburon; Rebecca W. Watkin, Elizabeth R. Smith and Roger Kent, Kentfield; Nancy Swadish, Mill Valley; Nancy Strawbridge and Francis L. Newton, Belvedere; Harold Morgan and Muriel S. Appenzeller, San Rafael, and Charles M. Geller, San Anselmo.

Rep. Clement W. Miller reluctantly flew back to Washington Sunday after mending political fences during the entire congressional recess. He wasn't at all happy about the reconvened session, which he called the Lyndon Johnson Special.

His opponent, Fred G. Dupuis, early this month launched a swing throughout the entire seven county district. Today he's in Humboldt County. He won't return to Marin until after the national candidates meeting in Washington, D. C., early next month.

Marin Sen. John F. McCarthy, who is continuing his drive for re-election, announced he had agreed to stump the state on behalf of the Nixon-Lodge ticket.

Plans are in the making for a $50 per plate dinner in the Alta Mira Hotel early next month as a fund raising gimmick for Everett A. Matzen, the Democratic candidate for Assembly.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

More Tots Should Be At Muir Beach

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

I liked your editorial Aug. 8 (re Shoreline Highway improvements). It was courageous and right. And of course I like things that give me the courage of my convictions.

I went to this meeting at Tam Valley school expecting to remain quite neutral on the highway issue. Way before the hearing was half through, however, I saw that neutrality was impossible.

I borrowed a pencil and hurriedly wrote down the following thought. Quote:

"Slum clearance is one of the big topics of the day all over the world. We hear here today the voice of what could be interpreted as a selfish view by a few who would enjoy the great God-given, beautiful, clean air of a healthy living area, thus leaving the slum residence where they are.

"The refusal of man to share space on earth leads to war which at the present time is the finest method discovered to limit population.

"Muir Beach is one of the healthiest places to raise children. I would like to see hundreds more living there."

I would like now to elaborate . . .

The Golden Gate Bridge was loudly protested, but is now considered a thing of beauty. Some landscaped highways have real aesthetic value.

When large trucks, hauling logs or sand, are on this narrow road, traffic is slow and hazardous.

To Sam'l Newsom I say that if you are afraid of "mobs," you will have to live in fear the rest of your life.

To George W. Wheelwright I say that if you don't want to be "disturbed," you will have to continue retreating the rest of your life.

William R. Hurst owned several million acres in Mexico and didn't want to be disturbed. The land was confiscated by the Mexican government.

Finally, an analysis of the situation in Cuba and the Congo at this moment is recommended for some of the protestants.

My argument is simply that until we find a good fool-proof method of birth control, we ought to give the poor kids a decent place to live and wider roads.

Muir Beach Not Opposing Highway

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Several times your paper has mentioned that the residents of Muir Beach were opposed to the new highway which is in the planning state coming through Muir Beach.

This is not so as no vote was taken.

The three members of the Community Services District were voting for themselves and not for the people of Muir Beach.

The need for a highway is great. People should be able to travel all over Marin County and elsewhere safely. The present road was built for the horse and buggy days. We that use the road day in and day out risk our lives every time we use it and resent those outsiders telling us what kind of roads we should have. We pay taxes the same as the rest of the citizens.

I am sure there will be plenty of space for the hikers and plenty of room for those that wish to live here. But they should not be selfish keeping others from living here.

As one that lived here for 30 years, I welcome progress.

Government In Medicine Repulsive

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

I, for one, appreciate the articles you have written regarding medical legislation. I am much opposed to fluoridation. And the idea of government in medical affairs is very repulsive.

For instance, the "Niells Bill" is just another example of letting "the camel's nose under the tent." I hope it will not go through.

S. L. King, utilities executive at Stinson Beach, asked that a patrol be sent to the beach and signs erected to halt garbage and refuse dumping. Mayor Carmel Booth of San Anselmo testified the situation is "disgraceful—the reason I don't go to the beach any more."

A Sausalito shipyard dump has been used, according to attorney William O. Weissich, "for burning old mattresses, dead dogs, dead cats and offal from butcher shops" with such nauseous odor that "my client (Mrs. Pete Hadges) and her tenants became sickened and nauseated."

Cahan Decision Hand-Cuffing Narcotics Enforcement In Marin

What about the narcotics problem in Marin County?

It's getting worse every day, we're told. But even more tragic is the fact that law enforcement agencies can't do much about it.

Why not?

Within the past month, three men charged with narcotics possession have been freed by the Marin County courts, not because of lack of evidence but as a result of the Cahan decision.

"THE NARCOTICS traffic is increasing," claims Dist. Atty. Roger P. Garety, "but so is the difficulty convicting offenders."

The Cahan decision as handed down by the State Supreme Court in 1955, excludes all illegally obtained evidence.

The informer is essential to the stamping out of pushers, junkies and the other members of the underworld narcotics setup.

Unlike other crimes, there is no victim in a narcotics offense. No one will call the police—except the informer.

THE MARIN County Sheriff's Department launched a one-man narcotics bureau this week, with the return of Inspector Richard Argento from two weeks schooling with the Federal Bureau of Narcotics.

"The success of our bureau will depend largely on its informants," declared Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos.

Police officers will tell you the fastest way to lose an informant is to identify him. First, he would lose his value in future cases and, second, he would be subject to injury or death in gangland fashion.

The Cahan decision demands that the identity of an informant must be disclosed if requested in court.

Felony narcotics charges against two Sausalito men were dismissed last week in Marin County Superior Court when the district attorney refused to disclose his informant's name.

POLICE HAD raided the pair's houseboat after keeping it under observation for several weeks.

They stopped a teen-age girl who was leaving the boat. She had two marijuana cigarettes in her purse.

Inside they found a quarter of a pound of marijuana scattered about. The two men were arrested.

Because the original informer who had tipped off the police three weeks before was not named, the case was thrown out of court.

"We don't want to tamper with an individual's constitutional rights," declared Sheriff Mountanos. "We just want to stamp out the narcotics racket."

WHAT CAN YOU do?

The state legislature will consider the problem at its next session. Send your views—either pro or con—to your state senator and assemblyman.

It's our problem, let's help solve it.

Contact Peers Over Prison Walls In Search For Magazine Material

THE STAFF of Contact has been looking to, of all places, the prisons of the country for material for the magazine's next issue.

Publisher William H. Ryan says:

"Contact is interested in seeing any material from those imprisoned, as well as from their keepers, and from writers and artists working directly or indirectly within this theme."

Readers qualifying can send their material and inquiries to Contact, Box 755, Bridgeway and Johnson, Sausalito.

Ryan explains that this interest in penalogy stems from the theme chosen for the next—the sixth issue—of Contact. Due for publication in September, it will grapple with the problems of "The Criminal Man."

Says Ryan: "The magazine will feature the criminal man as he is a part of the whole human situation."

Definitely scheduled is the publication of the complete script of the controversial television show, "Meeting of the Minds." That's the script dealing with capital punishment prepared by Steve Allen and Nat Hentoff for presentation on Allen's TV show. It made newspaper headlines when the National Broadcasting Co. ordered its cancellation on the grounds that it was unsuited for a variety entertainment show.

THE GATE PLAYERS are in the process of becoming the Gate Repertory Company.

These enthusiastic young Sausalito-based thespians are forming what they hope will be a permanent well-organized and closely-knit company.

They explain: "In the past, we simply gathered a bunch of actors and technicians together when we were ready to start work on a production. Then, after that particular show had completed its run, we scattered. And when it came time for our next production, we had to assemble another bunch."

They hope that the repertory company set-up will eliminate this turnover.

They also expect that the new arrangement will permit them to go eventually upon a regular year-around two shows per week schedule in their Gate Playhouse on Sausalito's Bridgeway.

Still another part of the plan is for experimental, noncommercial plays — such as the old Greek tragedies—to be presented once a week, on Mondays, without an admission charge.

Members of the company will be placed in one of four classifications — apprentice, junior member, senior member and executive member. And with experience, company members will advance up the ladder.

Gate personnel is expected to continue pretty much as is —young people aspiring to theatrical careers and eager for the experience the Sausalito stage can provide.

Typical is Skip Rognlien, young Sausalitan who is currently preparing to direct his first musical comedy. Rognlien is a graduate of Montana State University with a B.A. degree in drama. He's been with the Gate for a year and a half, acting in a number of productions and setting his sights on a career as an actor or a director.

He will get his first chance to try his wings as a director —except for some college productions — when he calls the turns for the next Gate musical, the George Gershwin-George S. Kaufman Pulitzer Prize winner, "Of Thee I Sing."

Auditions have been held. And young Rognlien is full of vim and vigor as he plunges into his challenging assignment.

It is this same enthusiasm on the part of all of the stage-struck young Gate personnel that makes their musicals so lively and entertaining. And with the repertory company set-up, they feel they will now be in a position to add greater coordination and a more professional polish to their productions.

Earle Marsh—Man Of Many Roles

And The Mill Valley Doctor Plays All Of Them Well

By PATRICIA ZINN

Physician, author, clinical professor, film producer, little theater director, homing pigeon enthusiast, husband and father are all roles in the first-rate one-man production entitled "Earle Milliard Marsh."

In earlier days and in more minor roles, Mill Valley's prominent resident and gynecologist has also been cast as janitor, locker room attendant, waiter, and dishwasher.

Today, nearing the age of 50, Earle Marsh can look back on a life where "medicine always came first with drama a primary interest," and whose college years read like a profile of courage.

It is, in essence, the embodiment of a philosophy of "accepting yourself as you really are" and "living every second of today—not tomorrow or yesterday."

Earle Milliard Marsh Jr. was born in 1911 in Omaha, Neb., the son of Earle Milliard Marsh Sr., and Grace Putnam Marsh.

At the age of 10, he moved with his family to San Francisco, where he finished grammar school and was graduated from Lowell High School.

EVEN AS A child Earle Marsh wanted to be a doctor, and the nurture of this desire through childhood and adolescence must have strengthened him in the pursuit and attainment of that noble ambition. Graduation from Lowell High found him with a diploma in one hand and Black Friday, so to speak, in the other.

His father, an electrical engineer, had set aside the money for his son's study of medicine in Trans-America stocks, but, with the crash, these dividends were not available. Thus, the young freshman entered San Mateo Junior College, earning his room in the gymnasium by serving as a locker room attendant and his board waiting on tables and dishwashing. In his possession, yet today, is a card of membership in the San Mateo County Dishwasher and Waiter's Union.

Finishing junior college, Earle Marsh entered the University of California in 1931 when the United States was in the very depths of the depression. By working all night as a janitor in the Four-Fifty Sutter Building, the junior Marsh managed to continue his education. He was graduated from Cal with an A.B. Degree in zoology. Drama was his minor field of study.

Although the new graduate applied and was accepted at McGill Medical School in Montreal, Marsh's lack of funds prevented his enrollment. He stayed behind for a year of post graduate work in zoology at Cal, while a number of his classmates and friends went on for their first year at the Montreal school.

Where a lesser man would have given up the ghost at this unfair twist of fate, it was not so with Earle Marsh. He was too busy not only with graduate studies in zoology but even more preoccupied with "falling on plans" to finance his way through medical school.

THE FIRST attempt lay in the realm of Hollywood He had read from time to time glowing accounts of how the stars had helped youngsters "break in" and so he dashed off 30 to 35 letters to members of the illustrious film colony in hopes . . .

Another iron was thrust into the fire with the announcement in the press that the Mayo Brothers had set aside 16 million dollars for the furtherment of science. Earle Marsh hitchhiked his way to Chicago to qualify as just that —a furtherment of science. Sadly enough, this fund was earmarked for graduate research only—not for "greenhorns." He thumbed his way back to San Francisco.

These attempts having failed, he, perhaps in a last ditch effort, went to call on Ernest Falconer, clinical professor of medicine at the University of California and, more significant, a famous McGill graduate.

Dr. Marsh now some 28 years later says he will "never forget that day" he called on Falconer.

When he arrived at the office, the pert secretary mistook the name Marsh for Morris and ushered him in to see the renowned doctor with "Dr. Falconer has been waiting to see you, Mr. Morris." Earle Marsh hastened to explain his entry had been under false pretenses, but he had got his foot in the door.

Falconer loaned this collegian the necessary funds for McGill save for $300 which he secured in a pledge from a friend. Thus, he deposited himself at the portals of McGill that fall only to find, too late, that the $300 would not be his. He was all set to come home. But for the contributions of two fraternity brothers, Bill Marsh, now a doctor in Berkeley, and John Anderson, brother-in-law of Harrison Leppo of Mill Valley, this would have been the case. They not only loaned him the necessary funds but also made available their textbooks

FINANCES, however, forced Earle Marsh to return to California where he needed two courses — biochemistry and physiology—in order to meet the requirements for the second year of medicine at the University of California. Thus he returned to San Francisco and once again enlisted the aid of Ernest Falconer in arranging a transfer to Stanford that summer where he could get biochemistry and physiology facilitating his entry into Cal.

Once the transfer was arranged, he had only to scare up the money for tuition. Although the entire amount was not anticipated when he tackled a job demonstrating and setting up display booths for Campbell's soup and juices, it was realized because of his highly effective job of selling.

This came about one day when two women happened into a grocery store where he was demonstrating the Campbell's products. So effective was his sales pitch that the two walked off with half a case of soup.

However, not before the older woman had inquired if this were a full time job.

Recalling the incident today with amusement, Dr. Marsh says it was "just like old home week" when he informed her that he had just completed his first year of medicine at McGill It seems that many of her own son's friends were at the Montreal school. Thus, before departing, she got his name and that of the Campbell distributor. The next day he received a telephone call inviting him to a cocktail party to meet her son. A friendship sprung up between the "salesman" and his customer which culminated for a time when she sailed on a trip around the world.

Dr. Marsh says "all this was great" but he still had to find $150 for school. Always poised between today and tomorrow, he decided to ask her husband, Gus Elbow Sr., for a loan. This he did, and the loan of $150 enabled him to take biochemistry and physiology at Stanford.

BY THE TIME he was ready to enter the medical school at Cal, Earle Marsh Sr. was able to assume a large part of the financial burden toward his son's education.

In retrospect, Marsh says that Falconer, Marsh, Anderson, and Elbow "saved his life," and to them he owes a great debt of gratitude.

The versatility so marked in the character of this future physician could be seen even in these years. He was at one time or another a singer with the Tom Cookley and Roger Burke bands. During the interim between his sophomore and junior years in medical school, he toured the West in a floor show for the Music Corporation of America. Two partners in the show that year (1935) were Stanford men, Jim Copp and "Doodles" Weaver, later of Spike Jones fame When the tour concluded in Los Angeles, Copp and Weaver suggested to Marsh that he look up a Stanford classmate of the fairer sex when he returned to San Francisco. He took their suggestion to "heart" and Mary Ann Crary, a graduate of Stanford in English, public speaking and drama, later became his wife.

This aptitude for music is today carried on in grand tradition by his 18-year-old daughter, Jane, who was the winner of the Marin Music Chest Scholarship and who enters the Oberlin College Conservatory of Music in Ohio this fall as a sophomore.

Earle Marsh went on to finish medical school not only academically but financially ahead. Between the first and second years in medical school, students must acquire what amounts to $125 worth of instruments. Earle Marsh established a business which was to continue through medical school by supplying students at Cal and Stanford with these instruments on a wholesale package deal.

Dr. Marsh Hopes For Progress Instead Of Perfection

of California Medical School Hospital in San Francisco.

Following residency training, he served as a member of the hospital teaching staff.

Soon thereatter, the United States entered war and Marsh, as a member of the Navy Medical Corps, was sent to the National Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, Md., where he was a liason officer between the departments of surgical, gynecology and obstetrics on the one hand and psychiatry on the other. During his three years at the center in Bethesda and at the Chestnut Lodge Sanitarium in Rockville, Md., he worked with such great names in the field of medicine as Margaret Mead and Harry Stacks Sullivan. After the war ended, the Marshes returned to California and moved to Marin in 1950, where Dr. Marsh immediately associated himself with the Sausalito Little Theater, Cove Players, Mill Valley Masquers and Mill Valley Light Opera Company.

Barry Mineah, director of the Music For Minors series sponsored by the Symphony Guild of Marin, and Marsh have done several musicals together. The last one was "Princess Ida" produced in 1957. This fall they plan to produce "Die Fledermaus" by Johann Strauss, with a cast of 60, orchestra of 30 and backstage crew of 25. Mineah will train the singers and direct the orchestra, and Dr. Marsh will stage and direct the production to be given at San Rafael High School.

SINCE 1926, when he first participated in little theater, Earle Marsh has been collecting stage equipment and a feature of his Mill Valley home is a sound studio. Thus today for plays, he does all his own lighting and sound effects. Marinites will remember many of these recent productions as "Inherit the Wind," "The Crucibles," "Thieves Carnival," "An Inspector Calls," "Sabrina Fair," "The Epitaph of George Dillion" and "Come Back Little Sheba." In several instances, Mrs. Marsh has had a role in a play directed by her husband, and with brown eyes twinkling the doctor says "to direct one's own wife, that's something."

This husband and wife team participation in the theater also extends to daughter, Jane, who recently completed four year's study at the Elizabeth Holloway School of Theater in San Francisco.

However, Jan'es interests have not been confined to music and the theater. Several years ago the young lady wanted to become a veterinarian and, consequently, the Marsh home became a haven for all forms of animal and marine life. This prelude to and enthusiasm of Jane toward this vocation was encouraged, says Dr. Marsh, until the inception of what was to later become for him "a high flown hobby" and the inclusion into the "happiest clan I know." When Jane came home one day with the news that she had been fortunate enough to come by two homing pigeons, Dr. Marsh put his foot down. Foresight alone must have spurred Jane on, for the pigeons arrived and the doctor's prized redwood lumber was utilized for their loft. No doubt admiring this display of perserverance, her father relented and developed such a fascination for the birds that he became owner of several hundred dollars worth of homing pigeons and a member of the Tamalpais Homing Pigeon Society.

IN 1946, Dr. Marsh, who fathered the pre-natal education program, had his book "Your Baby Is Born" published. Drawings in conjunction with the book were done by gynecologist and medical artist Dr. Robert Dickinson. It was Dickinson who introduced Marsh then on a lecture tour in the East, to Alfred Kinsey.

A great professional as well as personal regard sprang up between the two men and Marsh was the gynecological consultant for Kinsey's book, "The Sexual Activity of the Human Female." Marsh regards the late Alfred Kinsey as "a very great man" and "true scholar." He also believes the book to be the most accurate body of data of its kind that there is today.

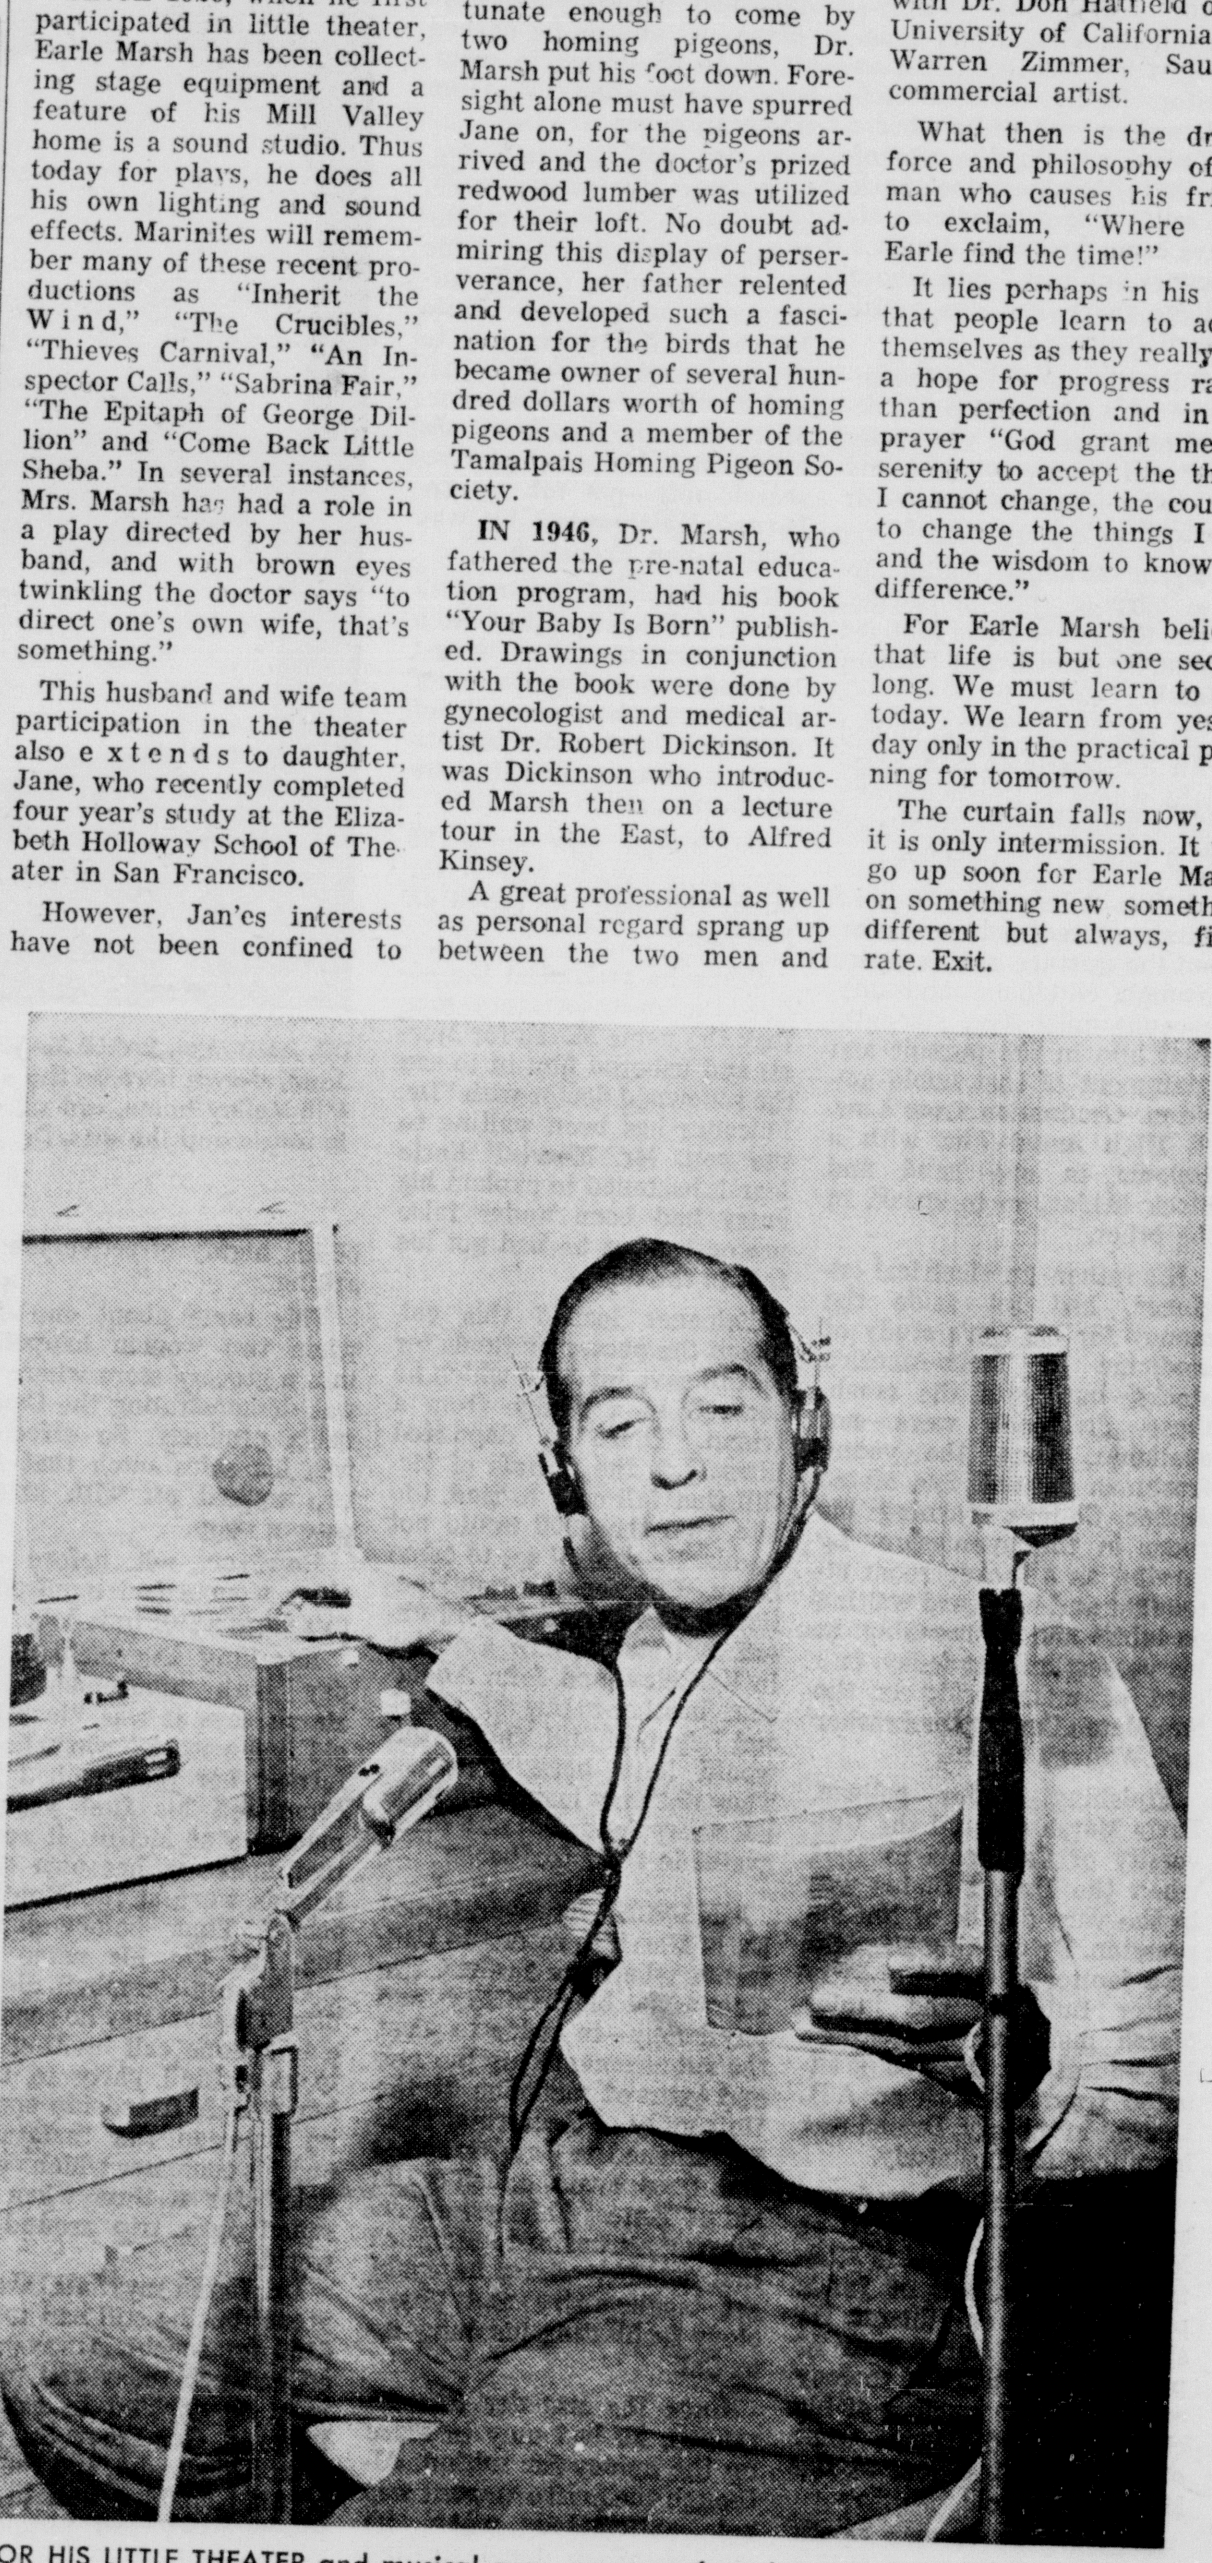
To further his pre-natal education program, Dr. Marsh not only lectures at colleges and universities throughout the country, but also produces medical films in partnership with Dr. Don Hatfield of the University of California, and Warren Zimmer, Sausalito commercial artist.

What then is the driving force and philosophy of this man who causes his friends to exclaim, "Where does Earle find the time!"

It lies perhaps in his hope that people learn to accept themselves as they really are, a hope for progress rather than perfection and in the prayer "God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, the courage to change the things I can and the wisdom to know the difference."

For Earle Marsh believes that life is but one second long. We must learn to live today. We learn from yesterday only in the practical planning for tomorrow.

The curtain falls now, but it is only intermission. It will go up soon for Earle Marsh on something new something different but always, first-rate. Exit.



FOR HIS LITTLE THEATER and musical productions, Earle Marsh does much of the ground work in his sound studio at home. Here with tape recorder and microphone, he works on a script.

The English Bulldog— An Affectionate Pet

His Tough-Looking Mug Hides A Personality That's Lovable

By DON KEOWN

The English bulldog has come to be regarded by the unknowing as a bad-tempered and pugnacious as well as stubborn breed.

Actually, says Mrs. Chester Bates of Woodacre's Ches-Bee Kennels, nothing could be further from the truth.

In actuality, she says, the English bulldog is a friendly, lovable, intelligent fellow who can't help it that he is the bearer of a sour and somewhat forbidding mug.

"When I walk down the street with one of our bulldogs on a leash, I notice that most of the people we meet give us the widest berth possible," she says. "But that is totally unnecessary. People who know bulldogs will tell you that they are among our most even-tempered and best-behaved dogs."

English bulldogs have been a favorite with Mrs. Bates since she was a girl in Texas.

"I CAN REMEMBER that I used to bring all the stray dogs I could find home with me to feed," she says. "My father, a druggist, would blindfold them and lead them away, but most of them would find their way back again and stick around. And so we always had dogs.

"But I never found myself an English bulldog. And that was what I really wanted."

Mr. Bates, too, had developed a special liking for the bulldog as a child.

It was no surprise to his wife, then, when he returned from a trip East 15 years ago with a male bulldog puppy, sired by Champion Nugget Revival, which he had bought in Boston, Mass.

That marked the Bates entry into the bulldog-breeding field, first in San Francisco and more recently in Marin.

At present the kennel population consists of five bulldogs—and five basset hounds. The bassets were added a year ago.

"The bassets appealed to us in much the same way as the bulldogs," Mrs. Bates explains. "They are man-made, bred from something far different into what they are today. Like the bulldog, the basset is something of an oddity among dogs. And I guess that is one reason we like them both so well."

"The basset is a clown and likes to cut up," she reports, "but the bulldog is good-natured and patient with the basset's antics."

The Bateses have had considerable success entering their bulldogs in shows. They have yet to place their bassets in competition, but expect to do so sometime in the future.

Mrs. Bates recommends the bulldog as a pet with but one qualification. A smaller dog is better for the very young child, she says. The bulldog's very heft makes him difficult for the tot to handle.

But for the older child, the bulldog is an ideal pet, she says.

Furthermore, no large area is necessary for the proper keeping of a bulldog. He's not a sporting dog and thus requires very little space and a minimum of exercise.

NOR IS THE bulldog a noisy dog.

"Our bassets bark much more than do our bulldogs," she says.

The bulldog's appetite is just about normal for a large canine.

But the real reason Mrs. Bates regards the English bulldog as "the dog" lies in his personality.

"To us, he just seems more like a human being than other dogs," she says.

Mrs. Bates agrees that enthusiasts for other breeds are unlikely to agree with all of her contentions. But tomorrow she and her husband will be mingling with a goodly number of people who do. The Bulldog Club of Northern California has scheduled a chicken barbecue at the Bates home.

The talk, you can bet, will all dwell on English bulldogs.

And there will be complete accord that the bulldog is an affectionate and agreeable fellow with a totally undeserved reputation for ferocity.

HUMPHREY, or Ches-Bee Regulus as he is more formally known, is the grand old man of the Ches-Bee Kennels. He's 8. And a frequent prize winner in the show ring. Here he romps with Mrs. Chester Bates.

ALL RIGGED UP and ready for his ride aboard a T-33 "T-Bird" jet at Hamilton Air Force Base is Independent-Journal reporter Carleton Williams. But before Williams reached this stage, he had had to convince the Air Force that he was a fit subject for such an adventure. You can read about those experiences—and the ride—on these pages. Jet Ride: We Went Thataway

Reporter Tells Of Flight On Hamilton T-Bird

By CARLETON WILLIAMS

I am able to report with some authority that today's Air Force jet fighter planes accelerate speedier, climb steeper and fly higher than my MG-TD.

Upside down, even.

A recent flight I took in the rumble seat of a T-33 "T-Bird" jet from Hamilton Air Force Base can best be summed up, simply as: We went thataway.

"We" being myself and Col. George Ceuleers, then commander of the base and an old hand at flying the contraptions. Also at bailing out of them when need arises, which it sometimes does.

Our flight, I am happy to say, was uneventful. By this I mean we left the ground on schedule and returned to our point of takeoff without having to vacate the plane in mid-air via the ejector seat route, an experience described to me as harrowing, at best.

THIS WAS, indeed, fortunate since, for the life of me, once airborne, I could not remember the rather complicated sequence of levers, buttons and gadgets it would have necessary for me to push, pull and activate in order to send first the canopy, then me, into outer space.

In fact, inside the cockpit were so many gadgets I had been cautioned NOT to touch that I hesitated to scratch my nose during the hour or so we cavorted in the air between Hamilton, Candlestick Park, Santa Rosa and the Farralon Islands.

Also contributing to my immobility was a flight suit, helmet, rubber life raft, parachute and a small telephone exchange, into which I had been squeezed, poured and zipped by three able bodied flight crew chiefs.

When I say the flight was uneventful, I do not mean to minimize the sheer joy of dropping from 10,000 feet (straight down) for a closer look at the expression on the fact of a deckhand napping on the fo'castle head of a passing freighter. Or playing good guys and bad guys with a northbound passenger plane whose pilot, thousands of feet ahead of and below us, was happily unaware we had assigned him the role of Nazi pilot in a game of World War II called, "Adolph, Where Are the Whites of Your Eyes?"

Also impressive was the sight of the fuel gauge as it clocked off a gallon of my gross paycheck every five or six seconds, reminding me of nothing so much as a taxicab meter one New Year's Eve when I took my first date to a downtown movie.

HAVING SUFFERED through my share of sonic booms, I was also quite surprised at the silence of the plane in flight, making it possible for Uncle George, as he was affectionately called behind his back to tell me a number of jokes new to my repertoire.

As fascinated as I was with the ride, however, I must confess it was somewhat of an anti-climax considering what I had to go through to convince the Air Force brass I was in fit shape to leave the ground as their guest.

First, there was the little matter of a pre-flight check-up, valve grind and overhaul. Assuming the examination would consist of a few thumps in the brisket and a hand-shake by a chuckling old sawbones, I agreed to take a few minutes off from the office and drop by.

It was no less than four hours later, clutching a sheaf of medical documents against my naked form, that I reached the other end of a line of a score of young pilots, each a Greek God with a wild-blue-yonder look in his eye and radiating the blooming health I so jealously despise to see in my younger contemporaries.

The friendly family doctor I had expected was noticeably absent. In his stead were not one, but at least a dozen specialists, each assigned to probe, poke and peer at or into that area of my anatomy he was best qualified to appraise.

AS I APPROACHED each group of doctors, they would first nod to me, steal a second, startled look at my second-hand chassis, cast sidelong glances at one another, then shake their heads sagely. "Are you sure you want to join the Air Force?" one of them, a portly colonel holding a stethoscope, asked with an unmistakeable note of incredulity in his voice.

He appeared relieved, both as a medical man and a taxpayer, when I assured him I was not planning to take the wheel of one of their million dollar planes, but was merely going along for a short ride.

Strangely enough, I was pronounced alive.

"Are you sure you want to join the Air Force?" an enlisted medic asked me as I left the building. He was, I believe, an airman first class who had operated the eye testing machine.

I didn't bother to answer.

Proving that I register a pulse at sea level, however, did not answer the question as to whether I would disintegrate at 35,000 feet. Nor did it tell them that I could be taught to operate the ejector seat which, if I activated it properly, would shoot me roughly 60 feet, straight up and clear of the hurtling plane, with the approximate force of a 37 millimeter shell.

To answer these vital questions, they hustled me off to the Alameda Naval Air Station, the nearest ejector training center and decompression chamber, the latter a medieval device designed to break ear drums and produce acute cases of anoxia. Also to teach pilots never to be casual about high altitudes.

BACK IN THE bi-plane days of my youth, a successful flight consisted of taking off smartly in your little prop-driven beauty, zooming her about gracefully, and putting her down in what we used to admiringly call a three-point landing.

Times have changed.

Today it sometimes becomes impossible to put her down at all, despite a sincere desire on the part of the pilot to bring home the taxpayers' investment. It is for these moments that the ejector seat was designed, considered by many a surviving jet pilot to be the greatest single invention since the bottle opener.

Even after more than two hours of motion pictures and lectures on the history, operation and importance of the life-saving machinery, I could scarcely be termed an expert at bailing out of a supersonic jet on its way earthward by way of the short cut. I demonstrated this handily when, during sort of an examination following the course, I was shot some 20-odd feet in the air from a dummy mockup of a jet cockpit, complete with simulated oxygen equipment, throttle and panic buttons.

On my arrival at terra firma I had not only forgotten to switch from the plane's oxygen supply to the bottle in my 'chute, but had also failed to disconnect myself from the seat itself, the first requirement if the ejecting pilot ever plans to attend another reception at the officers' club.

"You're dead," the Navy chief in charge of the instruction said matter-of-factly. "Next man!"

MEANWHILE, back at the decompression chamber, I proved conclusively that a normally intelligent man at 30,000 feet acts like an apprentice idiot when his oxygen supply is cut off.

The chamber itself looks more or less like a streamlined, hermetically sealed cable car, seating 12 passengers, six on a side, facing the aisle. In front of each man, attached to his oxygen mask, is breathing equipment identical to that found in the cockpit of a jet fighter. By pulling a vacuum in the chamber, it climbs to 35,000 feet.

Without going into an analysis of Boyle's Law which I have not thought of since I flunked high school physics, I can only say that the air above 10,000 feet isn't fit for breathing, for the simple reason there isn't enough of it.

(For those statistically minded, I might add that the outside temperature at 30,000 feet is roughly 48 degrees BELOW zero. Also, if one has eaten heartily of beans, cabbage and beer before take-off, he feels a real kinship to an observation balloon.)

To counter the effects of a lack of good breathing air, we were put on 100 per cent oxygen to make up for the lack of the precious stuff, which is far more important than an apple for keeping one healthy 'way up yonder.

WITHOUT OXYGEN in the blood stream, a man's body noticeably changes at about 10,000 feet when his judgement, vision and coordination drop off below normal. From 15,000 to 18,000 feet, his personality becomes that of a mild drunk. From 20,000 to 25,000 feet, the symptoms of a lush become more apparent. In short, he soon passes out. At 40,000 feet, unconsciousness is almost immediate, closely followed by the old man in the nightshirt carrying a scythe.

To verify this theory, I volunteered to take off my oxygen mask at 30,000 feet and undergo a simple intelligence test similar to that given the guests at any nut hotel.

I was asked to place a series of colored, odd-shaped blocks into correspondingly colored holes, a simple task even for a retarded five-year-old.

Grasping the blocks confidently in my blue fingers (one of the symptoms of anoxia, or lack of oxygen) I started out like a Quiz Kid. It was not for at least 45 seconds that I became aware that the sneaky designers of the test had given me more blocks than holes.

Or, perhaps more holes than blocks.

As swiftly as any mild drunk, I sought to outwit them by demonstrating that the yellow triangular block fit perfectly into the round red hole. This failing (so they told me later) I grinned somewhat foolishly and began idly tossing blocks over my left shoulder, putting some in my pocket and generally registering my contempt for such a foolish game.

I also felt it very unfair of them to turn out all the lights.

THEY RETURNED my mask—and my sanity—exactly one minute and 32 seconds after the test began. Three blocks, I recall, were properly placed.

They said it was about par for the course.

So, blue from anoxia, dizzy from being shot skyward and still shaking from my ordeal with the entire Air Force medical staff, I was pronounced in great shape to fly, and glad to have you aboard, sir.

On the appointed day of my flight I was delivered to the field in an official car complete with driver, a considerate gesture, I suspect, to partially atone for what they had put me through. Behind the wheel was Sgt. Chester Thoren, Marin County's Air Force recruiter and a man always on the prowl for likely fly-boy material.

"Have you ever thought of joining the Air Force?" he asked, innocently enough.

I told him I appreciated the offer, but that, at my age, I was going along only for the ride.

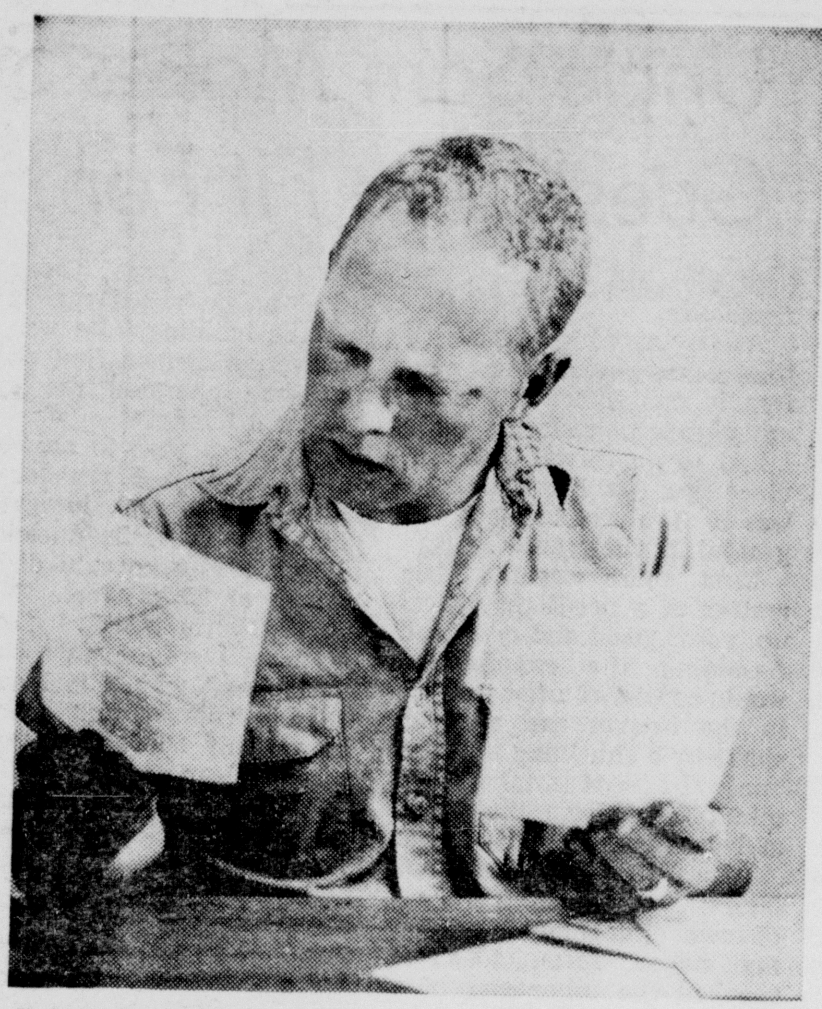
BARBARA TURNER holds the position of managing editor on the staff of Sausalito's Contact magazine. But on the small staff, everyone pitches in and does a multitude of jobs. Here she addresses envelopes soliciting advertising for the next edition.



PUBLISHER and editor Bill Ryan puzzles over the makeup "dummy" for the next Contact issue. It will be a special edition devoted to exploring "The Criminal Man."

Contact: It Challenges Its Readers With Fresh Ideas

In a field in which mere survival has come to be considered quite a feat, the young staff of the Marin-based quarterly, Contact, is confident that the publication is on its way to the stature of a nationally-accepted magazine.

The staffers point with pride to the attention that their publication — a collection of new writing, art and ideas—has been enjoying of late.

They say that one reason for this widespread interest is that so few magazines have been initiated and sustained from the West Coast.

Making the Contact project all the more remarkable is the fact that the magazine was not launched in one of the larger West Coast cities such as San Francisco or Los Angeles. Its home is Marin, with offices located on the first floor of a small Sausalito apartment house.

But the staff is certain that the primary reason for their success to date is their successful exploitation of the purpose for which Contact was conceived in 1958 by Bill Ryan and Herb Backman — to present a new and fresh glimpse of the world through the eyes of high quality, thoughtful fiction writers, photographers, artists, essayists and poets.

WHATEVER THE reason, Contact, with just five issues off the presses, already stands as the second most popular quarterly in the country from the standpoint of circulation. Its prestige is equally high, as testified by a number of high awards which the magazine has earned.

Ryan, a former advertising and sales promotion manager for KPIX-TV in San Francisco, had also worked for Popular Mechanics magazine in Chicago on its promotion and sales staffs.

Backman had been schooled in business education and had worked with an insurance office.

The bookstore had provided both men with an opportunity to learn the problems of the retail demand for reading matter.

After the idea for Contact had incubated with Ryan and Backman, the former next contacted Calvin Kentfield, a veteran writer for the New Yorker and author of two novels. Together they projected the new magazine.

The name Contact was chosen, thus reviving an old publication begun in 1926 by William Carlos Williams, now an advisory editor, and Robert MacAlmon. Their publication, dedicated to "finding values through art and constructive criticism of American life through carefully thought-out articles coping with the problems of our times," had survived for five issues. Later Williams, with the aid of Nathaniel West, revived the magazine, this time for a three-issue run.

THE GROUP OF editors charting Contact's revival decided they wanted to take material from small circulation "little magazines" and academic quarterlies, and expose it to a larger audience.

Existing media, they thought, were not giving the public enough credit for intelligence or providing enough originality.

Said advisory editor Williams as the new Contact made its debut:

"Only today are we beginning to get our feet under us again, finally rid of the Eliot influence. Now is the time for the name Contact to appear among us again, making its way among the heap of impedimenta which clutter the path about the feet of our young writers."

Today the magazine has a staff of five working editors headed by publisher Ryan, editor Kentfield and managing editor Barbara Turner, formerly with Vogue and Fellom Publications.

They are backed by six advisory editors — poet-novelist Williams, San Francisco State College creative writing instructor Walter Van Tilburg Clark, author Evan S. Connell Jr., lecturer-author-editor S. I. Hayakawa, Los Angeles Times book editor Robert Kirsch and Ray B. West Jr. West was the founding editor of Western Review, now incorporated with Contact.

THERE IS AN art director, a business manager, a corps of transient helpers—and a Paris office.

Contact has published such well-known authors as William Saroyan, Aldous Huxley, Alan Watts and C. Wright Mills.

But the staff is equally proud of the several major discoveries Contact has made in the unmined ranks of previously unpublished writers.

Honors have included two national literary awards.

The magazine is run entirely on a stock system of payment. All money goes directly to the printer, the binder and the landlord. The rest of the operation, the staff says, "is run on a combination of wit and escrow receipts."

All promotional advertising is through exchange space in Contact. And most of the publicity is provided by sympathetic reviewers and newspaper people.

All staff members, with the exception of the business manager, who draws five half-day salaries in exchange for six full days of labor, are part owners of Contact through the system of working for stock. So are all contributing writers and artists.

THE EDITORS point out that Contact is not the first magazine to get its start in life in this manner. Playboy, the New Yorker and others also began as corporations with a limited initial capital investment, nourished in a small and crowded office by a small staff with big ideas and a lot of energy.

the odds which go against the success of a new publishing venture is another attribute of every member of the Contact staff.

Contact has already graduated from a one-room office above the Tides bookstore to a flat of four rooms with a garage converted into a mailing room and a closet made over for the poetry editors.

Furnishings include such "luxuries" as a rug for the front office, an extension on the telephone, and an FM radio for background music.

A recent addition to the staff, Gerd Stern, Sausalito writer and public relations man, is viewed by the editors as auguring the possibility that Contact will grow and prosper as a national magazine.

"There is absolutely nothing now that can keep Contact from skyrocketing to a healthy circulation rate except for a sudden disheartening of the staff by a realization that the world doesn't want what Contact can give it—a fresh and vital approach to the problems of communication and education and entertainment," publisher Ryan says.

AN ARTIST has dropped off some drawings for possible use in a future edition of Contact. And Contact staffers gather around managing editor Barbara Turner to evaluate the art. Contact offices are located on the first floor of a Bridgeway apartment house in Sausalito.

AND RYAN IS confident that the thoughtful among the world's population not only want, but are eager for, the kind of reading material Contact is providing. And that there will be no disheartenment or disillusionment among his hard-working staff members.

Right now the magazine's major efforts are being directed toward picking up new subscriptions — $5 for one year, $9 for two years, $99 for life ("your's or our's).

These subscriptions mean not only acceptance but also vitally-needed capital for the young publication.

The staffers are idealists all. But they are also realists. And they know that only the response of a public willing to spend its dollars for their product will make it possible for them to continue to provide the kind of magazine which stimulates and challenges its readers.

STRIKE ONE, calls the umpire at San Rafael's Albert Field ballpark during a Midget League practice for boys 7 to 9. No summer recreation program for boys would be complete without the national pastime, baseball. And the San Rafael Recreation Department's program is no exception. (All photos by Rich Rains)

Summer Is Recreation Time

Summer time is fun time.

The kids are out of school. And mom and dad, too, find, with the longer days, they have more time for relaxation and recreation.

It is then that community recreation programs enjoy their greatest popularity. Playgrounds and swimming pools become meccas for children and adults alike who want to indulge in an old hobby or learn a new one, participate in or just watch a sport, and generally have fun and enjoy Marin's marvelous summertime climate.

The San Rafael recreation department is currently bringing to a close a busy 1960 program of activities and instruction on the playgrounds, in the swimming pools, and in various school classrooms.

In all, nine sites are involved, the largest being Albert Field, Gerstle Park and San Rafael High School gymnasium.

Thirty trained leaders and specialists, drawn from the teaching profession and college ranks, supervise the grounds and programs.

MORE THAN 1,000 boys and girls registered at the beginning of this summer's program in order to participate in sports, arts, crafts, both active and quiet games, story hours, dramatics, tournaments and contests, music, excursions and special events of all types.

Each week playground leaders conduct a special event. Playground winners then compete in city-wide competition in such events as Baseball Billy, Miss Wading Pool and Junior Olympics. The 1960 Junior Olympics, patterned after the famous international games, attracted 300 boys and girls this year. Each playground made a flag representing a favorite country and carried it in an Olympic-style parade that included the famous torch-bearing rituals.

The theme for 1960 has been "summer fun for the entire family," and the point is symbolized by the swim program at the San Rafael High School pool which has been used by more than 15,000 men, women and children. The activities include family swim nights, recreational swimming and Red Cross swimming instruction. Sixty adults have learned to swim in the night program and 5,000 children took part in the Red Cross instruction program.

Other activities for adults include sport and game nights at the high school gym where men and women participate in basketball, badminton, table tennis and volleyball.

Perhaps the most specialized program for adults are the softball leagues. This year more than 120 players will take part in the program. Teams are represented by clubs and industrial groups. Each team pays an entry fee which covers the cost of maintaining the league.

TEEN-AGERS are another part of the family well served through a special program of teen game nights and Friday evening dances at Santa Venetia and Davidson Junior High Schools and San Rafael High School. There are also teen trips including a hay ride and a moonlight cruise around the Bay.

In addition to the playground program, the recreation department conducts classes for children and adults with special interests. A series of lessons in folk guitar music was started this summer with a registration of 60 teen-agers and adults. Fifty girls attend the ballet and tap classes held twice weekly until the end of the summer program. Baton twirling, slim trim, and arts and crafts are among other types of special classes designed for interested groups in the community.

The 1960 San Rafael summer recreation program will be in its closing week next week.

Playgrounds will close on Friday.

A number of special events have been planned to give the children a last fling at summer-time fun before they return to their school studies.

THE SAN RAFAEL Recreation Department is now in its sixth year of serving the city with a variety of leisure time activities.

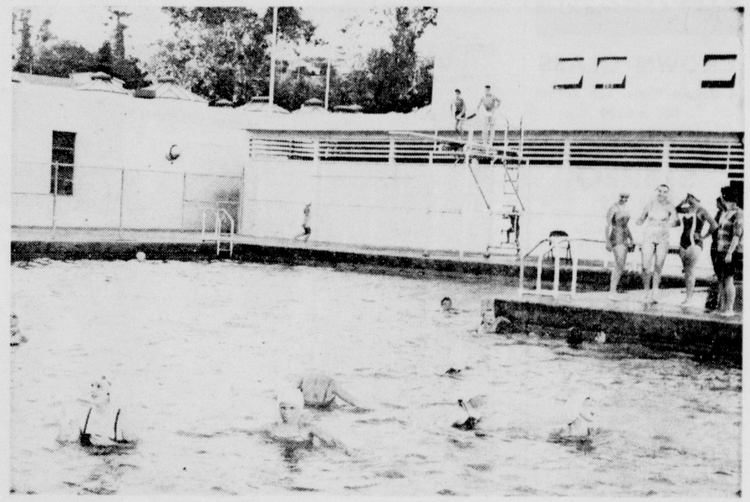
Summer of 1960 has shown, again, a tremendous response by the large numbers participating in the total program. More than 18,000 adults, teens and children have taken part in summer activities.

The department is now planning its fall program, which will include after-school activities, a teen program and special classes for children and adults.

DANCE INSTRUCTOR Mrs. Marge Belrose for the San Rafael Recreation Departments demonstrates a fancy tap step for two of her young pupils, who seem to be enjoying themselves — and learning in the process. Mrs. Belrose teaches ballet as well as tap as part of the department's diversified summer recreation program.

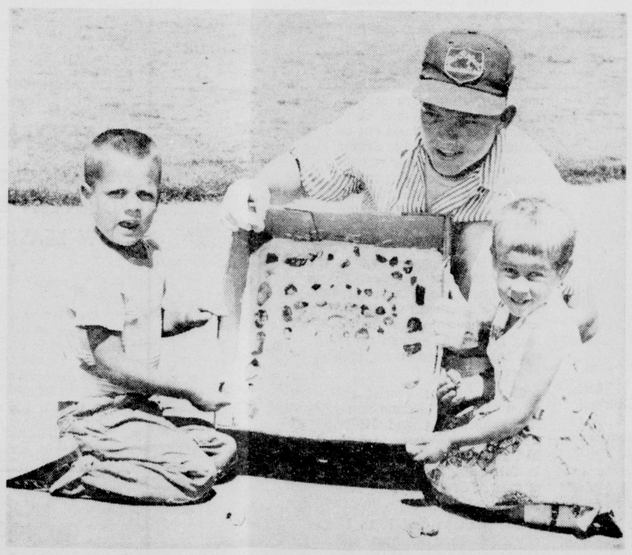
TABLE TENNIS is fun for participants and spectators, girls and boys, alike. Here a game is underway during one of the teen-ager game night programs held at the Davidson School.

THESE PRETTY little misses are all lined up for a lesson in tap and ballet dancing. San Rafael makes certain that its summer recreation program includes something for the little girls as well as for the boys.



NO SUMMER recreation program could be complete without swimming. The San Rafael program uses the San Rafael High School pool. This photo was taken by Rich Rains during a family night swim which permits parents and their children to enjoy their recreation together.

MUSIC ALSO has its place in the San Rafael summer recreation program. Here instructor Glen Carlson leads off the folk guitar class. His students include adults and teen-agers who find folk music relaxing.



A FINISHED arts and crafts project is admired by instructor Rich Rowe and two of his young charges, Guy Lindberg and Lee Ann Loffenberg, both 5. It's a plaster mosaic.

DIG IN, Rich Rowe, the arts and crafts instructor, invites children at the San Pedro playground. They are picking out rocks from which they will make a plaster mosaic. Such handicraft is an important part of the summer program which challenges minds as well as the bodies of the youngsters.

Minorities And Their Housing Problem

SAN FRANCISCO HOUSING MARKET — OPEN OR CLOSED? by Council for Civic Unity of San Francisco, 47 pages, 35 cents. Reviewed by Don Keown.

In answer to the question posed by the title of this booklet, the Council for Civic Unity reports that its studies "have confirmed what is already known by the minorities themselves: They are greatly restricted in their choice of where they can live in San Francisco, even when they meet the same qualifications applied to other buyers or renters."

The council has probed into the racial practices of Bay Area home owners (both sellers and neighbors), home owner associations, realtors, builders, financial institutions, public agencies and landlords—and into the reasons and factors behind these practices.

And while exceptions are duly noted, the council found that all these groups must bear a share of the blame for perpetuating the degrading and costly ghetto system for our racial minorities.

Discrimination, the council found, is usually based on causes that are irrational and undefined.

Realtors, lenders and builders are apt to express the oft-heard view that integrated housing means lower property values. The council claims that hard, cold facts show the reverse to be true except for those whites who "panic" and make quick sales when minorities first appear in their neighborhoods.

CASE HISTORIES cited by the council in which young Negro and young white couples sought to buy or rent the same housing are eye-opening.

The Negroes found the doors slammed shut in their faces—in some cases literally—in all but the already Negro neighborhoods. But white home-seekers, following them and seeking the identical quarters, received a far different reception.

It is difficult for those of us not of a minority race to imagine the disillusionment and discouragement — and even bitterness—that must result when a minority family has finally, by skimping, saved sufficient money for decent housing, only to then find themselves still denied that privilege by prejudices against which they are helpless.

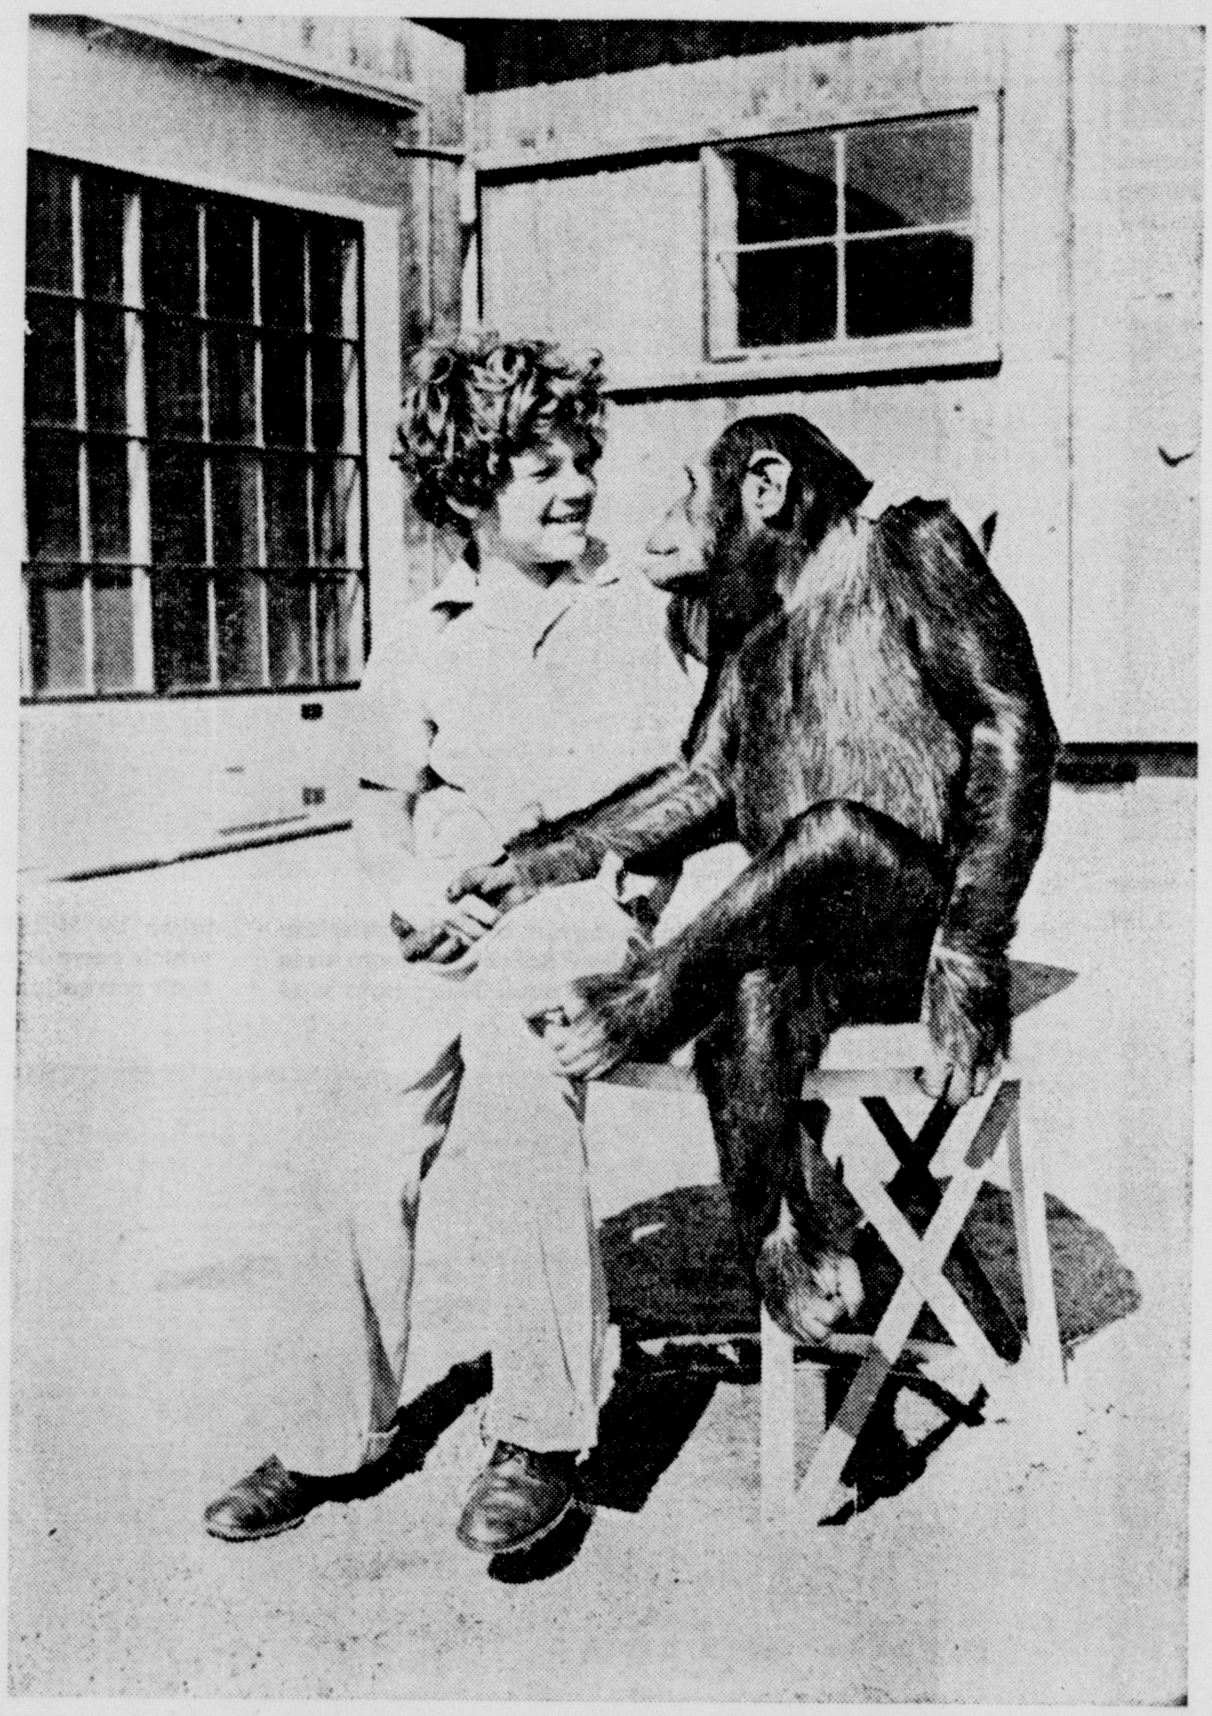
But the council says that its surveys uncovered indications of better things to come.

"Time and again the guilt feeling of the persons interviewed in this survey emerged in the form of rationalization or apology, and occasionally belligerence," the report notes.

"FEW WOULD openly admit personal prejudice. The ideals of equality inherent in the great religions and philosophies and expressed in the United States Constitution may be suppressed but not forgotten.

"This awareness is, we feel, a hopeful sign that San Francisco will one day live up to its claim of being a truly cosmopolitan city."

The council makes it plain that its findings are applicable not to just the city of San Francisco but to the surrounding suburban area as well.



TARZAN'S SON, as played by Dean Stockwell, and Cheetah are two of the featured players in Beth Day's new book, "This Was Hollywood," an anecdotal account of the film capital during the 1930 and 1940s, illustrated with many photos and published by Doubleday and Co. Mrs. Day is best known as a frequent contributor to Reader's Digest.

HOLLYWOOD AGAIN, A LA MOVIE MAG

THIS WAS HOLLYWOOD by Beth Day, Doubleday and Co., 287 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Bill Hendricks.

If you can stand still for another collection of anecdotes (we're full up to here) about Hollywood, this is it.

The studios, the big stars, the writers and, most of all, the producers are unearthed, exhibited and chuckled over in what should be a movie mag fan's nirvana. Some of the chestnuts are hoary, some are fresh. Either way they are, like the man says, nuts.

BOOKS

Another Novel On The South

SEED IN THE WIND by Leon Odell Griffith, Random House, 208 pages, $3.50. Reviews by by Don Keown.

Here is another entry in that currently most popular field with the novelist, the South and its racial problems. But this is not one of the better ones.

The big flaw is the peculiar and confusing writing style employed by the author through most of his book. It makes reading a laborious task. And the reader is never quite certain as to just who is doing or saying what — or at what time it is all taking place.

The author is a former newspaperman. But no city copy desk would pass this style of writing. Which is not to say a novelist should write like a newspaperman. But both should be coherent and comprehensible.

It is too bad because the author, a Southerner, seems to have not only a broad understanding of his region but also of all sides in the current racial struggle. And when he writes simply and without "tricks," he has the ability to interpret the attitudes, traditions and frustrations of those involved. Unfortunately, there is too little of this kind of writing. And too much of the other kind.

THE BRIDGE by Manfred Gregor, Random House, 215 pages, $3.50.

This novel by a young German author has already won wide praise. The English translation, by Robert Rosen, marks the 17th language in which it has appeared since it was published in Germany in 1958.

It's the story of seven 16-year-old German boys ordered to hold a key bridge at all costs at the time that Germany's World War II hopes and forces were collapsing. The desperate Nazis had pressed young and old into uniform in a last frenzied effort to stave off defeat.

Gregor's characterizations and motivations are strong. The seven boys—and their older superiors—stand out as distinct and clearly drawn individuals. And their strong-points and shortcomings, their mixture of courage and human frailties lend great authenticity and force to the story.

This is not surprising in view of the fact that Gregor, himself, was one of these very 16-year-olds about whom he writes—thrown into battle long after the German cause was hopeless. He writes from experience.

Their ruthless Fascist environment and, in some cases, Nazi upbringing and Hitler Youth training seems to have had a surprisingly minor part in fashioning the characters of most of Gregor's young subjects.

But perhaps that is to be expected. That madness, and the accompanying dark deeds, are things that most Germans would just as soon forget these days.

GEORGE STEWART is the author of "Ordeal By Hunger," story of the historic Donner Party. A revised and enlarged edition of the Berkeley man's book, published by Houghton Mifflin Co., is just off the press.

Story Of The Donner Party In New And Enlarged Edition

ORDEAL BY HUNGER, my George R. Stewart. Houghton Mifflin Co., 394 pages, $6. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Eighty-seven persons, more than half of them children, headed west by wagon train for California. Forty-seven survived to reach their destination on the following year.

Between those two bare facts occurred a tragic story unmatched in the annals of the great western migration —that of the Donner Party. And it has been told so well by George R. Stewart of Berkeley in "Ordeal by Hunger" that it has already attained the stature of a classic of western history.

In this new, enlarged tdition, Stewart appends a supplement which includes various data and manuscripts bearing in the Donner Party. But the body of the book remains as he wrote it in 1936. In his preface, he writes:

"I am content thus to republish the 1936 text. In the first place, I believe that it still holds up . . . In the second place, I may say, paradoxically, that I did not wish to tamper with another man's work; for I am not that man of a quarter-century ago."

He has done wisely not to attempt to gild the lily. He told the story as it should be told: With no hysterics, little moralizing, letting the events speak for themselves.

And what a tale!

It may be that the history of the Donner party holds keener interest for this reviewer because he was born at the place they knew as Twenty Wells, their last pleasant stop before the long dry march across the Great Salt Lake Desert, and because most of their route from the Wasatch Mountains (Stewart spells it Wahsatch) to the Sierra is familiar to him. But anyone who has driven the smooth grades of Highway 40 in a fast trip to Reno will recognize enough landmarks —particularly the lake just short of Truckee Pass, now known as Donner Lake, where snow trapped the emigrants.

The tragic tale of the Donner party may seem to the reader to come out of some bygone age. But only 114 years separate our day from theirs. The last survivor of the Ordeal by Hungry died only a quarter century ago. And even today, traces of their passing remain in the alkali wastes of the desert.

Pianist With Ideals Slated For Forest Meadows Concert

"He is a virtuoso . . . a veritable lion of the piano," wrote a London music critic after Eugene Istomin's first recital in the British capital a few years ago.

Then, the critic added, "but even in leonine assault, he never forgets that he is playing music on a musical instrument."

These two short sentences aptly sum up Eugene Istomin, who will be heard in recital tomorrow at 3 p. m. in Forest Meadows, Dominican College, San Rafael, as the third artist on the 1960 Marin Music Chest Summer Concert Series. As a musician, this 34-year-old pianist is bold, forceful and direct. Yet lyricism and poetry also fill his playing.

When away from the piano, while hardly "leonine" in appearance or outward manner, Istomin is a strong personality whose approach to life is as bold and direct as his approach to music. Istomin sees life in terms of ideals against which to measure actions. If music, he feels, is not to be approached only from the standpoint of technical prowess and an ability to "get through it," then neither is living. But the severity of his ideals is tempered by humor, and with a genuine love of living.

Now celebrating his 15th year as a top pianist, Istomin is accustomed to the surprise his powerful but musical pianism elicits from both audiences and critics. His success as a pianist, both technicaliy and interpretively, stems from his "old-fashioned" concern with art as a means of communication.

"If you can get an emotional response to the music itself," Istomin says, "then you've made an impression . . . it's only the artist . . . not the technician . . . who can touch people's emotions."

Regarded by many as the greatest of the American-born and trained pianist (he was born in New York, November, 1925, and trained at Curtis Institute with Serkin and Horszowski), Istomin has given concerts on every continent. Since 1956 he has circled the globe three times, appearing in major cities in Japan, Australia, South Africa, Europe and the Americas, as well as such out-of-the-way places as Iceland, Vietnam, Ceylon Singapore, Burma and the Philippines. He loves to travel, and will do so, even on his holidays; last time he roughed it by car through Yugoslavia and Greece, indulging in his hobby for archeology.

Tomorrow afternoon the pianist will be heard in a program including compositions of Beethoven, Schubert, Debussy and Chopin.

Gates of Forest Meadows open at 1:30 p. m. There are no reserved seats.

Music Chest closes the season a week from tomorrow in Forest Meadows with an evening performance by the San Francisco Ballet, accompanied by members of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra. That performance starts at 8:30 p. m. Gates will open at 6:30 p. m.

EUGENE ISTOMIN, once described by Pablo Casals as "among our greatest pianists," will be the next artist in the Marin Music Chest summer series. He will appear tomorrow afternoon at 3 in Forest Meadows, San Rafael.

MONDAY'S CHILD

Strange child, they say. She hides behind
A secret look, well-chosen words.
Her wall of defense is a kind
Of thoughts half-spoken, sighs unheard.

Tempest and sunshine; when the gale
Does break she is an enraged storm,
The thunder deadened, lightning paled
Followed by sunshine softly warm.

I do not find her strange. I caught
Her knowing look, and as she smiled
I knew how well they would be taught
The enigma of Monday's Child.

IT'S SAFE

A Toy You Can Build Yourself

Climbing up and down things, burrowing under them and nestling into snug hideaways are among the perogatives of childhood. But there isn't much opportunity for this sort of thing in the restricted space of a modern back yard

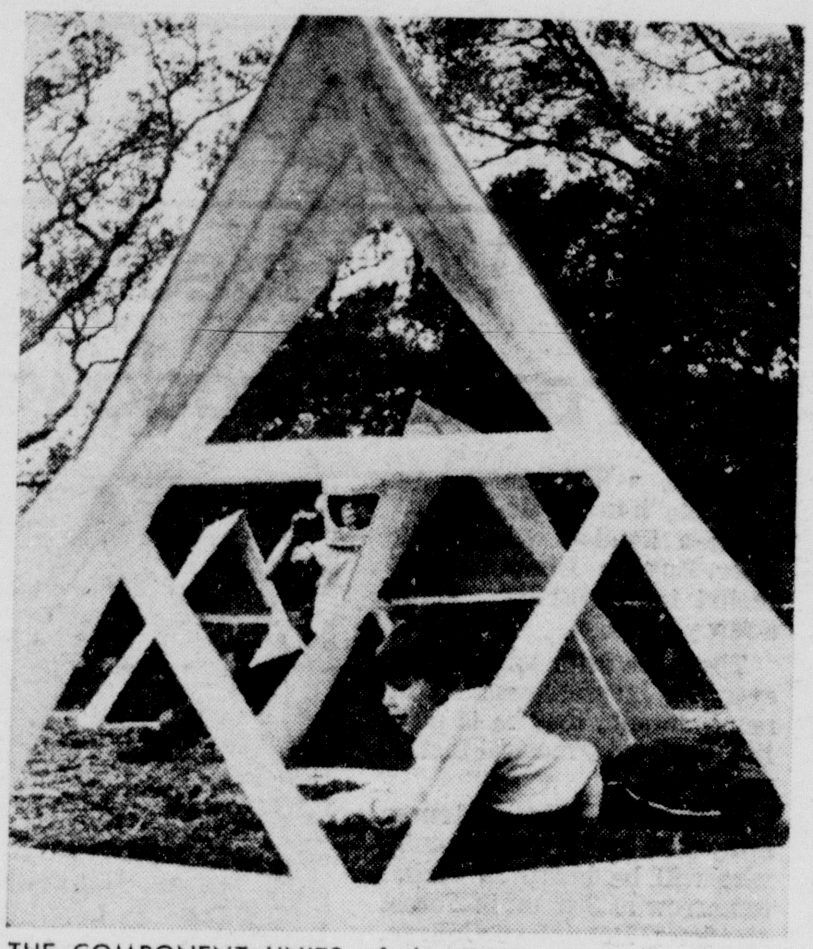
Taking their cue from the popularity of the climbing frames in many playgrounds, the editors of Family Circle magazine have come up with what they call a Tri-Tower, as part of a series of backyard "plywood playmates."

Family Circle editors spent more than a year working with San Francisco landscape architect Douglas Baylis to find structures that could be built easily and economically, that were attractive enough to be displayed in any yard, and were safe but lots of fun.

The Tri-Tower is a stacking unit that was "play-tested" by a group of youngsters who found endless possibilities for assembling and reassembling the parts. The 4 to 8 group loves to stack it, climb on it and sit in it and their younger brothers and sisters delight in nestling in the unstacked units and crawling through them.

The units are made from three-eighths-inch exterior type fir plywood, a material that's manufactured with a waterproof glue impervious to weather. Only two-by-two inch framing is necessary, so the units are plenty light enough for tots to handle. Stacked up, the units are safe and stable. The whole thing can be built for less than 45 dollars.

A free construction plan is available from the Douglas Fir Plywood Assn., 1119 A Street, Tacoma 2, Wash. Ask for the Tri-Tower.



THE COMPONENT UNITS of the Tri-Tower make perfect ground cover for peekaboo operations among the younger set. The Tri-Tower was designed as a safe, easily made toy, attractive enough for any backyard, for Family Circle magazine. Free construction plans are available from Douglas Fir Plywood Assn., Tacoma 2, Wash.

CHILDREN FROM 4 to 8 love to stack the units of the Tri-Tower, then climb on it or sit in it. Smaller fry delight in nestling in unstacked units. It is made entirely of three-eighths-inch exterior type fir plywood manufactured with waterproof glue, and with two-by-two-inch framing. Materials cost less than $45.

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

By Bert Brown, Marin Cleaners of San Rafael and Bel Aire
Member Textile Maintenance Committee University of California

"CAN MY FOAM RUBBER-LINED CAR COAT BE DRYCLEANED?"

Yes, it can be drycleaned. However, it does require special care. Textile manufacturers, to please you and provide a warm interlining for car coats, raincoats, skiwear and jackets for all the family, have either laminated or fused a sheet of foam to knitted fabrics or quilted it to the fabric in the same manner as a fiber bat to make a lining. This gives you warmth with less weight and bulk.

These foam interlinings have other advantages, too. The foam will not permit bacteria and fungi to grow in it. It has no odor and does not retain an odor to which it is exposed. It won't bunch or mat or shrink or stretch it is perspiration-proof, non-allergic and non-toxic.

With all these advantages foam interlinings are certain to grow in popularity and you'll find them in many more garments as time goes on.

Sometimes the foam lining is hidden, sometimes it is exposed. It is well to know that the foam lining is there, however, and to instruct your drycleaner when he cleans your garment. Quilted foam lining dryclean satisfactorily, but when the foam is laminated to the fabric it is necessary to use extra care in cleaning.

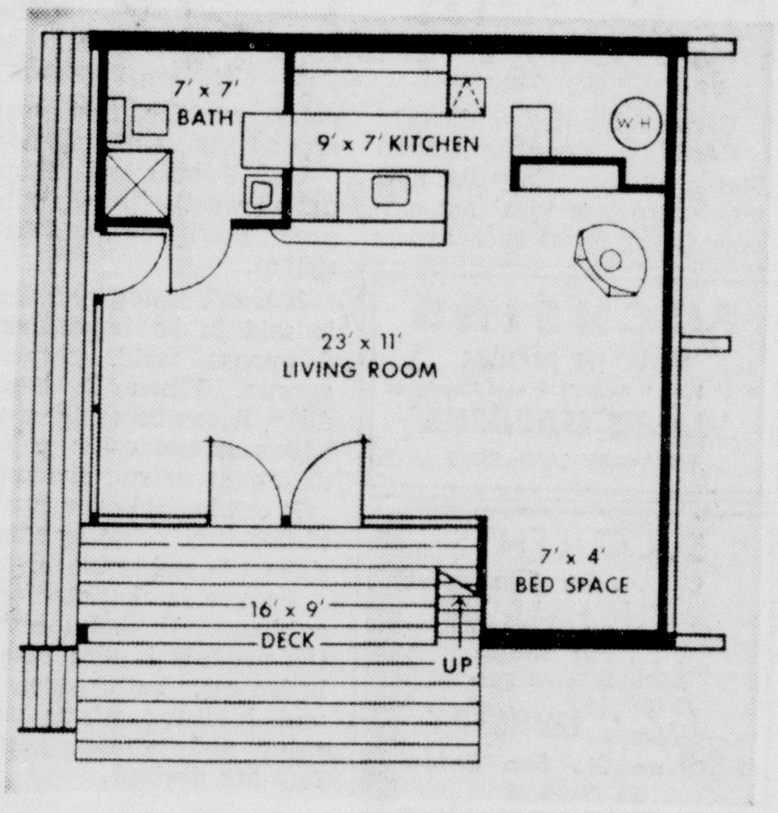
Your professonal drycleaner has special skills in handling combinations of fabrics and synthetic agents. Trust your garments to his care.

THE STURDY construction and light weight of the assembled Tri-Tower make it perfect for the youngster who finds adventure in climbing—and what child doesn't? And it's much safer than "shinnying" up a tree.

A Vacation Cabin—Ideal For Beach Or Mountains

THE SIMPLICITY and strength of the ancient A-frame design have been adapted to this modern vacation cabin. Relatively easy to build, it is a fine mountain or beach shelter.

THE RIGID construction will withstand mountain snows. And the windows are perfect for a view of the beach. Plans are available from the Douglas Fir Plywood Assn., Tacoma 2, Wash.



THE FLOOR PLAN shows the unusually large amount of space the cabin offers. First floor has porch, living room, Built-in kitchen and bathroom. Top deck is the bedroom area. More and more Americans, and especially Californians, are going in for second or vacation homes such as this. And these homes are coming to be more spacious and better designed than the cabins of a few years back. This layout reflects that trend.

The Gold Flower Flourishes In This Part Of Golden State

Although they call hypericum "St. Johnswort," the common name of one of its forms, Gold Flower, is more descriptive. For the brilliant golden blooms of St. Johnswort, set off by lush evergreen foliage, resemble flowers of pure gold.

According to the California Assn. of Nurserymen, St. Johnswort comes in several varieties—both as a shrub and as a ground cover. While it isn't demanding as to cultural requirements, St. Johnswort gives a dazzling array of summer color throughout Northern California.

The most popular variety for a ground cover also has an unusual name: Aaron's Beard.

This low-growing (to one foot) evergreen spreads quickly by means of underground runners. Plants established at nurseries, set in the ground from 12 to 18 inches apart, will fill in to make a compact mat of attractive green foliage. In summer, Aaron's Beard sports a profusion of bright yellow, three-inch flowers with showy center masses of stamens. It makes an interesting, highly adaptable cover for a steep bank, as the rooting network acts as a soil binder. In such a situation, Aaron's Beard should be kept well-watered; otherwise, it asks very little . . . only a place in the sun (or partial shade).

Another member of the St. Johnswort family which is extremely adaptable in Marin is Henry's Goldencup. This low-growing evergreen shrub, like all its cousins, is a vigorous grower in sun or light shade. Henry's Goldencup will produce abundantly big, golden flowers throughout the summer.

For an easy-to-grow shrub in sun or part shade, the earlier-mentioned Gold Flower is a sprightly favorite with Northern California gardeners. Because of its low, bushy growth and two-inch golden yellow flowers in spring and summer, Gold Flower is often grown as a specimen in the planting foreground, or as a border. It can also be used for massing under trees, banks and places where other plants won't do well. When combined with lower ground covers as ajuga or pachysandra, Gold flower gives lovely contrast and creates an undulating effect. It's frequently seen next to low spreading junipers.

WHILE STANDING on some red vinyl carpet laid outdoors in front of his store, Charles Paradise, estimator for the Rafael Floor Covering and Appliance on Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, holds a white roll of the same kind of carpeting. Carpet For Outdoor Patios, Pool-Sides

Carpets for the outdoors? Certainly, says the United States Rubber Co. Its new vinyl carpet is ideal for outdoor living areas such as the patio, or, for that matter, around the swimming pool.

U. S. Rubber hails the product as weatherproof, mildewproof, markproof, and fire-resistant.

It won't water spot, and it is said to be impervious to dampness, mold, moths and vermin. When it becomes dirty, it can be easily washed with soap and water, or with a detergent or rug shampoo.

It can be laid over any kind of flooring, including concrete slabs, tile and terrazzo.

Its use is not confined to outdoors. U. S. Rubber says the product is also ideal for bedrooms, bathrooms, halls and kitchens where safety, color and resiliency underfoot are desired.

U. S. Rubber says the vinyl carpet is just beginning to catch on for outdoor uses in the Bay Area. But one such place where it can already be seen with considerable frequency is in the entry way to stores—as witness the picture appearing on this page, taken at Rafael Floor Covering and Appliance on Francisco Boulevard in San Rafael. There the carpet was laid out in front of the store. Other business establishments have made or plan to make similar use of the new product. And U. S. Rubber hopes that home-owners will follow suit and carpet their porches, patios, pool-sides, etc.

Birds Are Asset In Garden, So Be Hospitable To Them

You find gardeners in every neighborhood who complain about birds. And to many a man, they always cite the visible damage which some few of our feathered friends have wrought from time to time.

We'd like to dissent from this viewpoint, and we're sure a majority of gardeners will join us. You don't measure a book by its cover, and you shouldn't measure a bird by the occasional buds or berries he eats. There is actually a great deal of benefit to be derived from providing a sanctuary for birds.

If you are like most of us, you enjoy the constant comings and goings of birds. You enjoy their songs and take real pleasure in recognizing a familiar call or in identifying a newcomer to the garden.

These you recognize as very real assets, but there are even more tangible benefits to be considered. Namely, as one nurseryman told us, a major part of any bird's activity in the garden consists of grubbing about for insects and their various larvae or in feasting on seeds of various plants, including weeds.

If you would encourage birds in your garden, then, consider the things that they like — trees and thickets or shrubs, or a tangle of rampant growing vines where they can seek refuge from predators and find shelter to nest. Such prolific seed annuals as marigold, gaillardia, zinnia, forget-me-not and sunflower are also attractions. And berried shrubs as pyracantha seem sometimes irresistible (though, strangely, birds will completely ignore the berries in one garden and eat them in another). Flowering quinces are thorny enough and tangled enough to make a good refuge, and they are wonderful to have in the garden, too.

Check with your nurseryman about other ways to attract birds. And don't overlook the possibility of a bird bath or bird house. Not all birds will nest in bird houses, but there isn't a one that won't go for the bath.

EASY TO GROW flower in Marin is the native California poppy, the seeds for which may be picked in fields or purchased in garden shops. These are particularly blossomfull in Spring and will re-seed themselves. (Independen-Journal photo)

Every Garden Should Start With A Plan

It should be the first job of any would-be gardener to develop an over-all plan for his garden. Whether he uses his own creative genius for this, calls in an expert, or picks his plan out of a home and garden magazine, makes no difference. The important thing is to have the plan.

Once he has accepted this fact of garden life, the homeowner has half the battle won.

If he is starting from scratch, he may proceed at once. If he is starting with an already established garden, he must first consider the often painful possibility that he will have to uproot shrubbery in wholesale fashion to achieve his ultimate idea of the perfect garden.

WHETHER STARTING from scratch or from the results of someone else's misplanning, you will want to make use of established trees and shrubs you can. A grown tree—especially a slow growing specimen such as oak—is an asset that should be preserved, even at the cost of somewhat altering your plan to accommodate it.

Put your plan on paper. This is a must.

In your drawing, locate the house and existing trees on the lot, then rough in your garden needs. Start with the front approach and give emphasis to the ease with which traffic flows into the house and around it to the back yard.

Then consider a service area—a place that can be closed off from the rest of the garden to hide the clutter of garbage cans, clotheslines, tools, etc. This should preferably be as close to the back entrance as possible.

Finally, consider your outdoor living area and its access to the house. Don't skimp here. We'd a whole lot rather see an over-size living area in an under-size garden than vice-versa. Once you are this far, the rest is easy.

But if you feel that such a plan is beyond your knowledge and experience in gardening, or if you want to be certain of professional results, don't overlook the availability of expert landscape architects and contractors.

IT IS THEIR business to turn out just such plans. And they have at their finger tips the latest information on plants, landscaping materials and trends, etc.

And if your plan is a "homemade" one, you can always take it to your nurseryman and let him help you in mapping out the planting areas and selecting the materials that should go in them. He, too, can save you a lot of headaches.

Here's Way To Pick Up Quick Color

California's long, dry summer and late fall are wonderful to live in, but they DO keep a gardener hopping. Unless he keeps a close eye on his garden, it may start to look ragged and bare in spots.

Look in your own garden this month — or in a neighbor's. Are bare spots beginning to show up? Will there be more of the same in September and October? Chances are you will have to admit to the affirmative.

On the credit side of the ledger, our long summer-fall makes it possible to stretch the planting schedule well into late summer with every chance of getting color in a hurry and keep it into fall. Few other sections of the country are so lucky.

If you would revive a fading garden this month, look to the heat-happy bedding plants which nurserymen offer by the flat. Some of them —marigolds, are a brilliant example—will give you color almost from the minute you set them out, and their color will continue to expand and glow for many weeks.

Zinnias, too, are candidates for quick growth and color from late summer on. They revel in heat and should have full sun to be at their very best. Keep zinnias well watered by irrigation and feed them when they are established to boost them along.

Tree Roots That Go Wrong Can Cause Strangulation

If one of your ailing trees fails to respond to normal cultural treatment, examine the roots. They may be causing strangulation.

Roots usually grow away from the main underground stem, branching and spreading fan-wise through the soil. Occasionally, however, a root grows close to and partially encircles the central stem.

Then, as the root increases in diameter, it acts precisely as would a wire cable wrapped tightly around a branch: it exerts increasing pressure against the stem, retards movement of moisture and nutrients in the conducting vessels, and causes girdling.

Symptoms of girdling root injury, as described by the National Arborist Assn, include sparse, pale foliage, premature leaf-drop, lessened twig growth, and die-back of upper branches. The base of the trunk immediately above the girdling root often is flattened or slightly concave, and there may be an area of dead bark at the ground line. Proof lies in digging down and finding the root.

Treatment usually consists of removing the root. This may be modified when, as occasionally happens, true grafts have developed. Following root treatment, the tree should be pruned and given fertilizer to promote growth.

- Plants in containers, especially hanging baskets, need extra attention from the hose. Daily watering is in line for most of them. A little fertilizer too!
- Keep chrysanthemums staked and remember to pinch off the side buds if you would have the biggest blooms on top where they belong.
- Hibiscus in full bloom can be transferred from the nursery container to a tub on your sunny deck or patio.
- Crabgrass controls can be applied again this month to catch evasive members of the family that lived through your first application.
- It's not too early to set out annuals for winter bloom. You'll find flats of snapdragons, stock, calendulas, violas and pansies among others at local nurseries this month.

SOHNER CALENDAR

OF IMPORTANCE TO NEW HOME OWNERS

Addition or removal of soil around trees—such as house construction activity—may seriously disturb delicate relationship between roots and soil, resulting in possible damage or death of tree.

If your valuable trees show signs of retarded growth, call Marin's experienced tree service, for free inspection and estimate on corrective treatment.

Television At Its Best In Series Of Interviews Of Elder Wise Men

PERHAPS THE finest thing yet done for television was the program, "Wisdom," a series of interviews with elder wise men of the world.

There were conversations with such figures as Bertrand Russell, Frank Lloyd Wright, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Jawaharlal Nehru, David Ben-Gurion, Sean O'Casey, Igor Stravinsky, Robert Frost, Pablo Casals and many others.

Adding immensely to the quality of these hour-long programs was the care given by NBC-TV in the selection of the interviewers. In each case the person chosen was one with special qualifications for high level conversation with the world figure to be interviewed. Frequently, the interviewer was a close friend or young protege of the interviewee, adding a warmth and personal touch to the talk.

The result of this tailoring of the interviewers to the personalities and interests of the person to be interviewed made the resulting discourse particularly stimulating and enlightening.

And NBC-TV was careful at all times to keep the level of those selected for the interviews at an exceptionally high plane. Listeners were never disappointed. Because every "guest" on the "Wisdom" series had something of great value to pass along.

In other words, the series title was well chosen.

NBC-TV has made two recent announcements of interest to those who followed and enjoyed the "Wisdom" series.

First the book, "Wisdom," published in this country in 1958 by W. W. Norton and Co., is to be translated and published soon in Arabic, Persian, Urdu, Bengali and Indonesian languages by Franklin Publications, Inc.

The translation into such relatively obscure languages as Urdu and Bengali testify to the thirst throughout the world of all peoples for knowledge and understanding of their universe and its relation to mankind.

Of more immediate interest here is the announcement that NBC's special projects division has filmed several new "Wisdom" programs. The new subjects include the likes of Andres Segovia, Nadia Boulanger, W. Somerset Maugham, David Low, Clement Attlee and Dr. Paul Dudley White.

Dates for the airing of the new interviews have not yet been set. But, certainly, it is to be hoped that the NBC's Bay Area outlet, KRON-TV (Channel 4), will carry the series when it does become available—and at a time when these great figures can have a maximum viewing and listening audience.

In so doing the station would be performing its "public service" obligation in the finest meaning of that oft-misused term.

RECENT well-publicized events have made television stations generally especially cognizant of their "public service" obligation.

This, no doubt, is at least partially responsible for the monthly bulletin now issued jointly by TV stations of the Bay Area listing "some programs of unusual interest."

In the bulletin such programs are broken down into six categories:

Current events, interviews, talks, news, analysis, commentary: Meet the Press, Open Hearing, Today, Paul Coates, etc.

Education and information: Johns Hopkins File, You Are There, Twentieth Century, etc.

Religious programs: We Believe, The Christophers, Talk Back . . .

Travel and exploration: Kingdom of the Sea, High Road, Vagabond, Bold Journey . . .

Public affairs: Our Lawmakers Speak, Assignment Four . . .

Unusual presentations: Specials such as the Olympics from Rome starting this Friday, next Saturday's Little League championship game, Project 20 programs, Camera Three, Silence Please, etc.

The list is admittedly impressive when such programming is presented in its totality. It is, however, disturbing to note just how many of the most worthwhile among them continue to be crowded into the Sunday morning and afternoon scheduling that TV has come to use as a "disposal" for public service programs so as not to interfere with the more lucrative evening shows.

There does, however, seem to be a definite trend toward more public service presentations in prime or near-prime evening hours.

This, undoubtedly, can also be attributed in part to pressure generated by the aforementioned "developments" and the resulting criticism of TV for failing to meet fully its public service responsibilities. But credit should also go to Bay Area stations generally for being in the forefront of the movement toward, not only acceptance of, but genuine enthusiasm for the public service aspects of their programming obligations.

Local shows of the caliber of Doctor's News Conference (Channel 2), We Believe (Channel 5), Assignment Four (Channel 4) and William Winter's interviews along with his newscasts (Channel 7), to name only a few, are indicative of this. In fact the local stations may be somewhat ahead of the networks in this respect.

Whatever the cause, we hope the trend toward more and better public service shows at premium viewing hours will continue.

Right now such programs admittedly do not enjoy the mass popularity of the western and private eye shows. But the very exposure to well-done public service programs will, we are certain, convert more viewers to that type of show.

TV producers have demonstrated that, when they try, they can entertain at the same time that they are educating and prodding.
